THE GREAT DERBY

WASHINGTON PARK CROWDED WITH EAGER THRONG.

WEATHER IS FINE AND THE TRACK IS GOOD.

HENO FAVORITE FOR EVENT

GREAT TURF CLASSIC PROVES IMMENSE SUCCESS.

Chicago, June 21.—Washington park this afternoon was the scene of the most famous of western turf events—the fifteenth American derby. This historical race was third on the program, but long before the bugle sounded for the first race the grounds were well filled and by the time the thoroughbreds entered for the big stake race had passed the judges' stand the stands and every foot of space up to the wire fence was occupied. In the field there was a vari-colored sea of vehicles. The American derby is not only a sporting event of the highest class, but a social one as well. At the club house, in the boxes, and in the vehicles were to be seen people of the highest standing socially and in the business and professional world. The horses were not without rivals for attention for the social prominence of derby day brought out a kaleidoscopic display of gowns.

CROWD WAS ENORMOUS.

It is estimated that between 50,000 and 60,000 people were present. The air was cool, but the sky bright. The betting ring contained a veritable mob, the weight of the money apparently going to one or the other of the eastern colts. The westerners were hard played, too, and there seemed to be a very healthy divergence of opinion as to the merits of the contestants.

WERE EARLY ASTIR.

The racing stables were astir at an early hour this morning and everywhere there was an air of something important going to happen. More than half of the derby horses had passed the night at the track and these were given light exercise on the inner track, none being allowed on the regular track on which the harrows were busy. The going on the inner track was soft and sticky from the recent rains, but trainers expressed a general opinion that if no rain falls the race track will have dried out enough to be not more than two seconds slow, which will leave little hope for those horses whose chances are thought to rest on their mud running qualities.

Heno, the favorite, took his morning canter with Jockey Bullman in the saddle and the rail birds watched them intently and agreed they are a good pair to beat.

A MIDGET RIDES.

Pentecost, with little Redfern up, breezed half a mile fighting for his head. He seemed a big handful for the midget on his back, and some wonder was expressed that Madden did not send from New York a jockey of more power and experience to ride his colt in such a great race.

Arsenal, with O'Connor up, went six furlongs at half speed. The colt moved well and the rail birds passed many complimentary remarks on the skill of his pilot.

Hermis, Belle's Commoner and Wyeth trotted and cantered enough to warm up a bit and show that they are in good form.

Otis, Aladdin, Prowl, Lucien Appleby and Lord Quex did light work at the Harlem Park race track, where they have been stabled during the spring meeting, and shortly before 9 o'clock were loaded on to a special train and started for the scene of this afternoon's contest. All looked fit and well, but it is thought that one or two of them will not start. Cruzados, Lucky Baldwin's colt, also is regarded as a doubtful starter.

THE EARLY BETTING.

The betting on the event this morning at an uptown hotel was as follows:

Heno, 2 to 1; Pentecost, 4 to 1; Arsenal, 4 to 1; Belle's Commoner, 7 to 1; Hermis, 7 to 1; Otis, 10 to 1; Hildreth stable (Lord Quex and Lucien Appleby), 10 to 1; Wyeth, 10 to 1; Aladdin, 12 to 1; Prowl, 15 to 1, and Corrigan, 25 to 1.

At 2:30 o'clock the crowd in and about the grand stand was so jammed that it was almost impossible to move. The track was labelled "good"—dry on top, but moist beneath. Among the bets were $4,000 even by Mr. Mackay on Heno at 2 to 1.

Lucky Baldwin's Cruzados was scratched.

BLOODSHED IN SYNAGOGUE.

Akron, Ohio, June 21.—Because not more than one man is allowed to talk in the orthodox Jewish synagogue at the same time, there was a small riot in the synagogue here today. Ben Rudeminsky emerged from the fracas with his head cut in several places. He, with Jacob Mermion and J. Rudeminsky are under arrest. Ben Rudeminsky and another man tried to talk at the same time and a quarrel ensued which soon developed into a fight. Bricks were thrown and the floor of the church was soon covered with blood and windows were broken. For a time it seemed that some one would be killed.

GAYNOR AND GREEN REMANDED

Quebec, June 21.—Judge Andrews today discharged the motion for contempt against Detective Carpenter and has remanded Messrs. Gaynor and Green to Montreal in charge of the jailor of that city.

FOREST FIRES ARE RAGING

GREEN RIVER VALLEY, WASH., A SEA OF FLAMES.

Large Forest Areas are Burning and Great Damage Has Ensued—Hotel Threatened.

Hot Springs, Wash., June 21.—For a distance of seven miles the Green river valley is a sea of flames. Since noon yesterday Dr. Kloeber and the employes and guests of the Kloeber Green River Hot Springs hotel have been persistently and successfully fighting the fire to save the hotel.

Steadily the fire was held back and assistance was asked for and promptly sent from Tacoma. Maywood, three miles below here, a lumber camp has been burned out.

On each side is a seething furnace so hot that the crew of the relief train was compelled to seek protection inside the caboose while passing it. Morgan's camp, one mile down, is partially destroyed, though it is thought the most valuable effects can be saved. At Canton, nine miles below Hot Springs, are congregated the few settlers and woodsmen of the vicinity. They declare the forest for miles around to be ablaze. At Eagle Gorge the same conditions exists and several smaller fires are reported within a radius of 25 miles.

IN JUSTICES' COURTS.

Salome Carnahan, who lives in DeKalb county, just across the Perry township line, has had some trouble with her neighbor, Michael Kistler, who lives on this side of the DeKalb line. The trouble occurred on this side and therefore Mrs. Carnahan filed an affidavit in Justice Smith's court, in Perry township, charging provoke. The case will be tried next Monday, if nothing worse than rain intervenes.

Justice Huser this afternoon bought a new shave, ate two bunches of imported onions, adjusted his best white tie and after a few other preliminaries pronounced Herman Leschner and Ida Steinert man and wife. All this trouble was not for a single wedding, however, since the judge has another engagement for this evening. He loyally refuses to give out the names of the second couple, because, as he says, he thinks they expect to steal a march on their friends.

MARRIED AT LEIPSIC.

Fred Todd and Miss Myrtle McKeen were married last Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents in Leipsic, Ohio. Mr. Todd is a Nickel Plate brakeman and resides in this city. He and his bride arrived here this afternoon and are now at the home of his mother, on Superior street.

MURDERED A BABE

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD GIRL IS UNDER AWFUL CHARGE.

GAVE TOT CARBOLIC ACID

MICHIGAN TOWN IS STIRRED BY SHOCKING CRIME.

PENNSYLVANIA MOB FOILED

TWO MURDERERS NARROWLY ESCAPE LYNCHING.

Clare, Mich., June 21.—Annie Curtis, of this city, a twelve year old girl, was taken to the county jail this morning by Sheriff Welch, charged with murdering the thirteen months old son of George Pardee by administering carbolic acid while the child was sleeping at her home.

Her arrest was ordered by Prosecuting Attorney Cummings. The examination will be held before Justice Maynard, of this city, July 2.

The babe was, day before yesterday, discovered by the people in the house frightfully burned about the mouth. There was nobody in sight and search was begun for the person who must have administered the dose. Suspicion fell upon the Curtis girl.

MOB WANTED TO LYNCH.

New Kensington, Pa., June 21.—Dominick Sandof, Tony Madron and Louis Madron, Italians, narrowly escaped lynching early today at the hands of an infuriated mob of several hundred men and boys. Late yesterday David James, a prominent citizen, was assaulted by the foreigners and Frank James, his son, who rushed to his rescue, was mortally wounded. Immediately after the shooting, the assailants fled, but were overtaken and lodged in the police station.

A mob of about 500 soon gathered and demanded the prisoners, but they were quickly taken to the railroad station for removal to the Greensburg jail. One hundred armed men were deputized as officers to protect the prisoners, but no sooner were they landed in the station than a rush was made for them. The building was partly wrecked, but the officers kept the mob at bay with drawn revolvers until a carriage was procured and they were hastily driven to Pittsburg.

Hundreds of the mob pursued the carriage, but the horses were fresh and soon out-distanced their pursuers. Later the prisoners were safely lodged in the Greensburg jail.

WIFE UNDER SUSPICION.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 21.—Mrs. Meyer, wife of Dr. Jacob F. Meyer, who was shot and killed last night in his office, remained in the custody of the matron at the police station all night. Assistant District Attorney Haller said today that he had learned nothing new; that his assistants had not been able to examine the witnesses.

The police state that they have ascertained that the revolver was purchased yesterday by Mrs. Meyer and that at the same time Mrs. Meyer purchased a box of cartridges.

ETZOLD-STETZER.

Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock Rev. Jacob Miller, of St. Paul's Lutheran church, united in marriage Miss Helen Stetzer and Fred Etzold, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride. Miss Emilia Stetzer, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and James Bogart, of Payne, O., was best man. The bride's dress was of white mull and she carried bride's roses. Her maid's dress was of white lawn trimmed with lace, and she carried pink carnations. The house was very prettily decorated. A wedding supper was served at 9 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Etzold are at home at a new home on Broadway.

TEACHER TAKES POISON.

St. Louis, June 21.—Prof. John T. Rapp, justice of the peace at Wellston, St. Louis county, and school teacher, was found dead in his bed today from carbolic acid poisoning. Professor Rapp had been dismissed from his position as school teacher because of charges which he declared were unfounded. He became very despondent.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

The Silver Leaf Temperance club met with Frank Elliot, 2208 Thomas street, last evening and elected the following officers for three months: President, George M. Maxwell; vice president, Carl Jennings; secretary, Harry L. Smith; treasurer, Frank Elliot; chaplain, Seymour Meimer; sergeant at arms, Patsy M. Griffin. Ice cream and fruit were served at 9 o'clock. The club will have a private ice cream social next Tuesday evening at the home of Seymour Meimer in honor of the ex-president, Albert S. Bowser, who leaves the city soon for the summer.

HELLO GIRLS ON STRIKE.

Des Monies, Iowa, June 21.—Seventy central telephone girls walked out of the two telephone exchanges today, tying up the Iowa and Mutual lines. The managers of the two companies are trying to fill the places of the strikers. The strikers, however, have organized a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and will attempt to make the strike general over the state. They demand an increase of wages to $30 per month and a nine hour day.

THREE-CENT FARES BLOCKED

PERPETUAL INJUNCTION IS GRANTED IN CLEVELAND.

Big Project Which Mayor Tom Johnson is Backing Held to Have Only Invalid Grants.

Cleveland, June 21.—The circuit court today granted a perpetual injunction against the construction of the so-called three-cent fare street railway in this city. The court declared that the ordinance granted by the city council to the promoters of the new company to build roads on at least three of the seventeen routes, was invalid.

The court pointed out that the original ordinance called for bids for seventeen separate lines, aggregating 75 miles in length; that the council had granted a franchise to the new company for lines aggregating 13 miles, or covering only three of the proposed seventeen routes, and that possibly only bidders would have been willing to carry passengers for less than three cents on a thirteen mile road, while not caring to bid on the whole 75 miles.

The court also declared against the municipal ownership and arbitration clauses included in the franchises as "unreasonable provisions."

Mayor Johnson is credited with being back of the three-cent fare company. The mayor stated today that steps would be taken to amend the franchises and a new start taken on the project.

MR. GEAKE'S TRIP.

Charles H. Geake leaves soon for a six months' trip to Victoria, B. C., where his father's cousin is in charge of the British naval station at Esquimalt, a position he has occupied twenty-seven years. Mr. Geake has been in ill health since the close of the Spanish-American war, and hopes to be benefited by the outing. He was yesterday presented with a handsome gold ring by the men in his employ.

FELL DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

Helena, Mont., June 21.—Alice Thompson, the five year old great granddaughter of the late James G. Blaine has been fatally injured by falling down the elevator shaft of an apartment store. Her father, Randolph Thompson, was private secretary to Governor Toole, but died about a year ago.

The location of the recruiting office has not yet been determined, but due notice will be given at least a week in advance.

MINER COMMITS MURDER.

Trinidad, Col., June 21.—Sontora Doettia, a coal miner, shot and killed Emil Carmina near this city and fatally stabbed a friend of Carmina, who attempted to save him. Doettia fled to the mountains and a posse is searching for him. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy.

MURDERED BY ROBBERS.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 21.—James Gallagher and wife were murdered by robbers at River Junction last night. Mrs. Gallagher had been chloroformed and her husband shot in the head. A gold watch and $17 were taken.

FIRST FOR CANAL

MR. MORGAN AND MR. HEPBURN IN CONFERENCE.

PLAN WORK FOR CONFEREES

WILLING TO ACCEPT PANAMA ROUTE IF NECESSARY.

AGREEMENT SOON IS LIKELY

HOUSE HAS WEST POINT AND PHILIPPINE BILLS UP.

Washington, June 21.—Senator Morgan and Representative Hepburn, representing the senate and house conferees on the isthmian canal bill were together today to arrange the preliminaries for the meeting of the conferees. Their associates were not called in during the early hours of the day, but were asked to hold themselves in readiness for an early meeting.

Meantime the friends of the respective projects were active in making plans.

Although no formal meeting of the house conferees was held, informal exchanges showed their general attitude. They are first of all for a canal and while favorable to the Nicaragua route, they will not insist upon that route to the extent of defeating all legislation. As soon as it becomes evident that the senate will not yield the Spooner amendment will be accepted as the best solution possible. There is no doubt this is the position of two out of the three house conferees and it is understood to be shared by all of them. This insures an agreement in conference without much delay, even if the house does not relieve the conferees of their responsibilities by adopting a motion to concur with the senate, which, there is good reason to believe Mr. Burton, of Ohio, is ready to make.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, June 21.—When the house met at 11 o'clock today, Mr. Hull, chairman of the committee on military affairs, called up the conference report on the military academy appropriation bill.

Mr. Hay, (Va.) Mr. Clayton, (Ala.) and Mr. Mann, (Ill.) criticized the action of the house conferees in agreeing to the increase in the number of cadets at West Point proposed by the senate. Mr. Mann said that recently the number of cadets had been increased 100. The increased membership of the house would further increase the cadets thirty, and now it was proposed to increase that number still further. He did not believe we should legislate in the direction of a great increase in the standing army.

Mr. Clayton called attention to the fact that the army, which cost annually $25,000,000 before the Spanish war, now costs annually $125,000,000.

Mr. Clayton finally moved to adjourn, but a second failed—36 to 68. After waiting twenty minutes a quorum appeared and the conference report was adopted—88 to 59.

Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, called up the conference report upon the sundry civil bill.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, moved that the house concur in the senate amendment for a memorial bridge across the Potomac, to cost not to exceed $2,500,000, and appropriating $100,000 for the proposition of plans. Twenty minutes' debate was allowed upon a side.

Mr. Grosvenor, in support of his motion, referred to the fact that the G. A. R. had endorsed the movement for a bridge to connect Washington with Arlington cemetery and Fort Myer.

Mr. Grosvenor's motion, after some debate, was voted down without division and the bill was sent back to conference.

The debate upon the Philippine civil government bill then was resumed.

PACKERS DENY TRUST RUMOR.

Chicago, June 21.—Special denial was made today by Arthur Meeker, manager for Armour & Co.'s packing plant, and by Michael Cudahy, of the Cudahy Packing company, that the companies had joined with others to form a trust under the New Jersey laws. Mr. Cudahy said: "I have heard all about this alleged combination between Armour, Swift, Morris, Hammond and all the rest, and I give my word that if the packers contemplate such action I know nothing of it."

NEW CRUISER LAUNCHED.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 21.—In the presence of a distinguished company of naval officers, many leading citizens from Colorado and a large number of persons from New York and other near-by cities, the unarmored cruiser, Denver, was successfully launched this afternoon at the Neafie & Levy shipyards. Miss Roberta M. Wright, daughter of Mayor Wright, of Denver, christened the vessel. Elaborate preparations had been made for the launching of the Denver and the shipyard was gaily decorated with flags and bunting for the occasion, but the heavy rain spoiled the decorations.

NORTHWEST SAENGERFEST.

Peoria, Ill., June 21.—The third day of the Northwest Saengerfest was attended by a greater crowd than on any other day. The streets are packed with people and additional singing societies are arriving on every train. Tomorrow is the great fest picnic and the railroads brought in 50,000 strangers. The concert last night was attended by 6,000 people and a pathetic incident occurred during the performance. Mme. Ramm-Linne, soprano soloist, received a telegram from Chicago just before she was to appear, saying that her 10-year-old daughter was dying of pneumonia. She completed her numbers and then left for Chicago. Before she reached there the child died.

OWNER FOR WALLET FOUND

MR. HUNSICKER, OF BERNE, PUTS IN CLAIM.

Says Pocketbook Picked Up at Wabash Depot is His—News of the Court House.

A certain Mr. Jacob Hunsicker, located at or near Berne, Ind., wrote an extremely explanatory letter to the sheriff, to the effect that the pocketbook found at the Wabash depot last Sunday night belongs to him. He described the contents in minute detail and courageously admitted that he would have stood the loss rather than to have made a big kick, but learning that the pocketbook and notes had been found he would like to have them back. He went so far in his letter as to state without a blush that he had a pretty comfortable sum loaded up when he was in town last and did not know just exactly where he got divorced from his bank roll. He modestly refrained from saying whether any cash went with the other truck. His description of the contents of the purse was so minute that Deputy Sheriff Eick took the responsibility of sending him the find without further inquiry.

COURT NOTES.

Amy B. Seavey, doing business under the name of the Seavey Hardware company, sues Julian Wagner on account for $175.

HORSEMEN HOLD A MEETING.

A meeting of horsemen was held last evening with Frank Pearse, and the preliminary steps were taken toward organizing a new driving club. Quite a number of horsemen are in favor of training their horses at the half mile track while others favor the mile track, and the result is a split in the ranks of the owners. The formal organization of the Mile Track Driving club will occur in the near future, and it is probable that the first matter to be taken up will be the question of holding a big race meet here this fall.

Monday evening another meeting will be held at the Wayne club, at which time and place it is altogether probable organization will be effected. The outlook for success of the new club is flattering.

ACCUSES LAD OF THEFT.

Emil Mistler, a saloonkeeper doing business on Hoagland avenue, accuses a young lad named Philip Conway with having tapped his till to the extent of a five dollar bill. The theft is alleged to have occurred yesterday during the temporary absence of the proprietor, who went into his back yard while young Conway was in the saloon. An affidavit has been filed and the officers anticipate no trouble in picking up the lad within a day or two. The same boy was recently in police court for some trivial offense and was discharged on account of his youth.

Mrs. W. S. Peterson, of Force street, entertained the social pedro club Friday afternoon in a very pleasant manner. Prizes were won by Mrs. John Baltes and Mrs. A. B. Tousley. The complimented guest was Mrs. Kensel, of Smyrna, O.

A TRICK OF BOERS

INOCULATED LIVE STOCK AT NEW ORLEANS.

SPREAD DISEASE IN AFRICA

DISGRUNTLED MULETEERS IN THE PLOT.

CAUSED BRITISH TO MOVE

SAME GAME WAS PRACTICED IN MISSOURI.

New Orleans, June 21.—It has developed about the boarding houses where the sailors and muleteers were recruited for the British during the South African war, according to a story printed here today in the States, that the diseases now raging in South Africa among the live stock there are due to inoculations made in this port by Boer sympathizers and disgruntled muleteers playing even with the British.

It is said that the virus used was secured from a Philadelphia chemist, and that it consisted mostly of charbon and glanders. It is also stated now that the British suspected that this crime was being constantly committed and for that reason removed their headquarters from this city to Montreal. The inoculations, it is stated, were also made in Lathrop, Mo., so that it was necessary to break up that camp as well.

The British are now retaliating, as it is intimated, by refusing entrance of Louisiana cattle in South Africa.

JURY WAS OUT TEN MINUTES

FIND JONES GUILTY OF THE HAYWOOD MURDER.

Noted Trial in Detroit Comes to an End—Child's Testimony Was Important.

Detroit, Mich., June 21.—Wm. M. Jones was today convicted of the murder of George H. Haywood on April 9th, last, and sentenced to life imprisonment at the Marquette prison. The jury was out only ten minutes. The murder was well planned and it is generally believed, but that for the evidence of a child of the victim, Jones would not have been convicted. Jones, who had been criminally intimate with Mrs. Haywood, lay in wait for her husband, who had attended a dance that evening unaccompanied by his wife. He first shot and then crushed Haywood's skull with a hammer. The evidence was entirely circumstantial.

WOULD FURNISH ATTRACTIONS

H. L. Leavitt, general representative of the Gaskill-Mundy Carnival company, arrived in the city at noon today and is a guest at the New Aveline. Mr. Leavitt's visit to the city is for the purpose of making arrangements if possible to bring the Gaskill-Mundy attractions to Fort Wayne on the occasion of the dedication of the new court house, and he stated that he was holding a week open for that event. This is the company which supplied attractions for the Elks' carnival at Logansport this week, and its usual plan is to arrange to present its program under the auspices of some organization, giving a per centage of receipts as payment for support given. Twenty-five attractions are presented in the wide range of amusement, including the Hagenbeck animal show. Mr. Leavitt was in conference with officials of the Commercial club and members of the county board, but no decision has yet been reached.

THROUGH COUNCIL

FLEMING FRANCHISE PASSED LAST NIGHT.

FOUR VOTES AGAINST GRANT

BERRY STREET RESIDENTS AGAIN MAKE PROTEST.

TERMS OF THE FRANCHISE

WORK OF CONSTRUCTION TO BEGIN AT ONCE.

Pursuant to call the city council met last evening in special session and passed the Fleming ordinance granting a franchise to the S. B. Fleming company to build and operate an electric road in the city, the ordinance passing by a vote of 14 to 4, Messrs. Hosey, Baker, Glenn and Lennon voting against it and Messrs. Hench and Baade being absent. No other business was presented.

The ordinance differs from the original one only in the matter of name and in its amended condition only lost two votes. Councilmen Lennon voted against its passage, changing his vote, and Mr. Glenn, who had signed the report of the committee of the whole but not being present when the original franchise was passed, also voted against it.

PROTESTS ARE MADE

After the usual formalities were gone through with, Hon W. G Colerick was recognized by the mayor and he, with Messrs. Ninde, R. B Hanna and Rev. Moffat, presented arguments against the passage of the ordinance. Mr. Colerick spoke at considerable length and insisted that the passage of the ordinance would be a hasty piece of legislation and entirely at variance with the wishes of the property owners along the proposed line on Berry street. He said that the property owners had not been given sufficient time to contest the passage of the ordinance and that a railroad on the street in question would work great damage to property along the route proposed. His argument recommended the use of the Fort Wayne Traction company's lines and in course of it the statute of 1899, providing for compulsory rights over existing lines was freely quoted. The other speakers spoke along the same lines.

MR. HOSEY'S RESOLUTION.

Mr. Fleming was given a brief hearing and when the question was called for Mr. Hosey offered a resolution which he pressed as an amendment. The mayor declared the amendment out of order. Mr. Hosey appealing from the decision of the chairman in which appeal he was sustained. The resolution was then read and on motion of Mr. Bauer was referred to the committee on judiciary over Mr. Hosey's protest. Mr. Hosey then started to deliver a speech, but had not got very far along in it before the mayor called his attention to the fact that he was not speaking to the question before the council which was now on the passage of the ordinance. The mayor then asked the clerk to call the roll and the result was the passage of the ordinance by the vote above detailed, after which, upon motion, the council adjourned.

SUMMARY OF PROVISIONS.

The provisions of the franchise are practically the same as those embodied in the franchise of the Southwestern company; provide for the sale of six tickets for a quarter on the cars or for the sale of seven tickets for a quarter in case of consolidation with any other company selling seven tickets for a quarter; makes provision for use of its tracks by other companies; provides for a cash revenue to the city aside from statutory taxes and stipulates that the road must be completed within a year. The route specifies the use of Pioneer avenue, Selden street, Winter street, Hayden street and Monroe street as a continuous line to Berry street, thence from the east end of Berry street westward to Harrison street and thence north one square to Main street, where it will cross the Fort Wayne Traction company's line to join with the Southwestern system, with which company amicable traffic arrangements will be made providing for transfers and other accommodations. This arrangement will give residents in the extreme southeastern part of the city facilities for continuous passage through the center of the city and then to the extreme western part of the city for one fare and at a lower rate than the same distance can now be traveled over the city lines.

TO BEGIN WORK AT ONCE

Mr. Fleming said today that he is prepared to commence work immediately and that the line as far as New Haven will be completed as much ahead of the stipulated time as money and push can accomplish. The project is thoroughly financed and there will be no lack of ready capital to prosecute the work of building. The material has already been provided for, Mr. Fleming having secured an option on a large quantity for immediate delivery before he presented his first application about thirty days ago.

THE DUKE OF NORFOLK, CORONATION STAGE MANAGER.

One of the odd things about King Edward's coronation is that the Duke of Norfolk, who as earl marshal of England acts as stage manager of the coronation ceremonies and who directs to the smallest detail the style and cut of the dresses and costumes of all the noble lords and ladies who are to take part in that brilliant spectacle, is himself one of the worst dressed peers of the realm. The old slouch hat which you see him wearing in the picture is his favorite head covering.

WILL HAVE UNION PICNIC.

The Christian churches in Allen county will have a union picnic at Swinney park on Thursday, July 31. The Sunday schools which will participate are: Monroeville, Williamsport, Little River, Aboit Station, Aboit Center, Maysville, Beech Grove and the two Fort Wayne churches.

YOUNG MONIHAN SENT TO JAIL

MUCH DRUNK INDIVIDUAL IS PLACED IN HOC.

To a Fine the Judge Added a Ten Days' Time Sentence—General News of the Police.

John Monihan was the only gentleman to face Judge Dreibilbiss this morning and as Mr. Monihan looked earnestly into the face of the dispenser of law and justice he could find nothing reassuring. The judge wore his stony stare this morning and it took him less than a minute to inform the culprit that his fine was taxed at $1 and costs, to which as a dessert would be added a straight jail sentence of ten days.

Superintendent Gorsline last night issued an order to all patrolmen to bring to the station without exception all boys or men found shooting off fire-crackers, torpedoes, pistols, firearms or Fourth of July disturbers of any kind. The superintendent has been in receipt of many complaints and while he claims to be a patriot himself, is convinced that Young America is altogether too premature this year. On the Fourth of July and on the evening of the third, the patriotism of the rising generation will be allowed to sizz and bubble and there won't be much kick if it runs over in places, so long as decency and judgment is exercised, but before that time the youngsters will have to pent up their Utica and keep them pent. No premature explosions will be allowed this year if the superintendent can stop it.

The glass in firebox No. 17 was broken last night, but no alarm was turned in. The Seventh ward is getting a bad reputation at police headquarters by reason of the lawlessness of a gang of very bad boys.

Any person who missed a cow from the family heartstone this morning can learn something about her by telephoning to police headquarters.

Information is wanted relating to the whereabouts of Sarah Olive Aldrich, supposed to have relatives in this part of the state. At Los Angeles, Cal., there is quite a snug boodle awaiting Mrs. Aldrich. It was left by her husband, who deserted her a number of years ago. Mrs Aldrich is an ardent Christian Scientist.

It has not been definitely decided whether the outing will be held at Huntington or New Haven, and a meeting will be held soon at which the reports of the committees will be heard, and the place definitely decided upon. A program of field sports will be carried out, the main features being a foot ball game, hurley contest and a base ball game between a team from Divisions Nos. 1 and 3 of the A. O. H. and the Shamrocks. Officers were elected as follows: Chairman, B. Dowling, New Haven; financial secretary, Patrick Ryan; corresponding secretary, James Murphy; treasurer, T. J. Connelly. The committee of arrangements consists of Messrs. John J. Reed, Thomas O'Dowd, James E. Feid, James Reilly and Miss Mollie Fox.

ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.

Mrs. Augusta Buhr yesterday filed a complaint for divorce against Charles H. Buhr. The plaintiff asks for alimony and the custody of their only child, a daughter about three years old. Friends are endeavoring to effect a reconciliation.

Sheriff Stout has been notified by Superintendent Johnson that Alma Mannock, recently adjudged of feeble mind by a commission, had been accepted and could now be received by the institution. The patient, who is admissible to the local institution, is a resident of this city and is at present in charge of relatives.

Judge Adair this morning decided the Brunstrattor partition case, which has been on trial before him for nearly a week. He ordered a partition of the property in dispute and appointed John W. Lawrence, Thomas Greer, sr., and Hugh McFadden commissioners. The commissioners are empowered to employ a competent engineer, not related to any of the parties to the suit, to make the survey and compute the divisions.

The rather racy divorce suit brought by Joseph Golden vs. Jennie Golden is on trial in the circuit court with Judge Vesey acting as special judge. A change of venue was taken from the sitting judge, whereupon Judge O'Rourke entered upon his minutes that he could not think of a regularly elected judge in the state available at the time to hear the evidence and therefore appointed Hon. William J. Vesey, a competent and reputable attorney, to hear and determine the cause. Judge Vesey has not shaken hands with himself since the stopper was pulled out of the first vial of testimony.

Contractor Andrews has finished hanging the mural decorations in the court house dome and workmen are today engaged in taking down the scaffolding, which has not ornamented the building for many months too long. When the staging is all removed the beauties of the paintings can be fully appreciated.

Caroline Tegtmeyer has filed her final report as administratrix of the estate of the late Justine Zimmerman.

The superior court was not in session today. Judge Aiken is at Lake George, trying to "shoo" venturous fish back into deep water, where they can not be caught by covetous anglers.

Sarah A. Cook has filed her final report as guardian of Frederick H. Cook.

Ephraim Grubaugh has filed his bond as administrator of the estate of Mary Grubaugh.

George Abdon has commenced suit against John McMullen et al. to recover on a mechanic's lien for $100.

Jennie Gunn has commenced action against Charles Boucher, alleging slander and claiming damages in the sum of $2,500. The plaintiff is proprietress of a Clinton street boarding house and recently commenced a similar suit against a boarder named Obenhauer. The suits are identical and charge the defendants with circulating slanders against her, referring principally to her alleged unchaste relations with a particularly favored boarder named Murphy.

Mrs. Grace Kappel files suit against Valentine Gebhart on account; demand, $75.

The county commissioners transacted unimportant miscellaneous business this morning.

The county board of tax review will get down to actual business on Monday. The board up to date has been engaged in examining the returns of the various incorporated institutions and several of them have been cited to report. The work is being systematized and next week will progress more rapidly.

VESSEL CAUGHT IN ICE PACK

STEAMER PORTLAND CARRIED INTO ARCTIC SEA.

Some Danger of Ship Being Crushed in the Strait—Advices From Nome Tell Story.

Nome, June 7, (Via Seattle, June 21.)—The steamer Portland, Captain Lindquist, the pioneer of the Northern Commercial company's fleet, was, on June 4th, caught in the ice pack and is being carried up Bering straits to the Arctic ocean at the rate of from two to three miles an hour.

The Nome City came near being caught in the same manner and when she found a lead and bucked through the pack to the westward, the Portland could be plainly seen drifting northward past the Diomedi islands. Three whalers were also in sight, but they were in the lee of the islands and in no danger of being carried into the Arctic by the floating pack.

When Captain Daniels brought the word to Nome that the Portland was in the ice and drifting towards the Arctic the Northern Commercial company's officers and people, who had friends aboard, were greatly worried and as soon as the Thetis arrived a petition was presented to Captain Healey, requesting him to go to the rescue. The Thetis left the same evening. If any one can render the imprisoned ship any assistance Captain Healey is that man. There is some danger of the ship being crushed in the straits. If she got through the straits and failed to find a lead to eastward or westward by which she could get clear of the pack, she will be carried into the Arctic ocean and failing to clear of the ice, may ultimately be wrecked by heavy floes further north. In the event of her not getting crushed, she will be greatly delayed, and no doubt run short of supplies and fresh water.

FOLLOWED HER MOTHER.

(Shirley City Entertainer.)

Miss Maude Cleveland, 16 years old, took carbolic acid about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon which caused her death two hours later. The girl seemed to have no real cause for the rash act. She was the daughter of a prominent and well-to-do blacksmith of Antwerp, and leaves the father, a sister and a brother to mourn her death. About one year ago Mrs. Cleveland committed suicide in the same manner that her daughter did last Monday. Deceased was buried in Forest Home cemetery at Hicksville, Wednesday afternoon.

UP IN MINNESOTA

The Women Know How.

Food, and good food, is the right kind of foundation to build good health on. A Minnesota woman writes, "I thought I would like to tell you of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me.

Last winter I got sick and kept getting weaker and weaker. I could not eat anything but some crackers and a little cup of beef tea for every meal, then I was put on Grape-Nuts and used it with some cream for breakfast. y stomach got strong gradually and before I had used three packages my digestion was so good that I could eat any kind of food, even cabbage, pastry, etc., and I notice that my memory is very much better than it used to be.

On the 5th of July I weighed 102 pounds and two months later, after using Grape-Nuts, I weighed 122 pounds and was able to do my house work.

This is a good honest statement of facts about Grape-Nuts and you can publish my name if you like." Mrs. E. Fredrickson, Center City, Minn.

Delicious recipes for warm weather desserts in each package of Grape-Nuts.

NEW CASH CARRIER SYSTEM

The Fruit House has just completed installation of an extensive cash carrier system, which will be put in operation on Monday morning. It is ready for operation now, but the proprietors concluded not to start on the busiest day of the week. It is known as the air-line system and differs from any other in use in Fort Wayne. Aside from that it is not only the largest system in Fort Wayne but is the largest system of this patent in the country. There are forty stations in the store and all the lines are independent of each other and as the name indicates, run in a perfectly straight line from the station to the cashier's desk. One cashier can handle all the lines in ordinary work; in busy times, two cashiers will be required, and in cases of extraordinary rush, three can be used to advantage.

Out Lots

I now offer the 120 acres on Walton avenue immediately south of the Lutheran college land, price $24,000 for the entire tract, $200 per acre, which will retail out at $400 per acre. Good opportunity to double your money. Terms easy, small payment down, long time on remainder. When we cleared off the very heavy timber on this rich land, many years ago, 900 thrifty young shade trees were left for outlot purposes, all of which are still there and growing. The population of Fort Wayne is steadily increasing and a still more rapid growth is now about to develop.

HENRY M. WILLIAMS.

Mr. Cleveland declares he is not to be thought of as a presidential candidate and Mr. Olney, with equal frankness, says he is in no sense a candidate. Mr. Hill is still a democrat and loudly non-committal.

The Illinois anti-trust law is declared by Judge Haney, of Chicago, to be a nullity in all its parts. In that respect the Illinois law is much like all other anti-trust laws. Courts have not in all cases pronounced them nullities, but they are never enforced, which amounts to the same thing in effect.

The superintendent of police has issued orders to patrolmen to suppress premature celebrations of the Fouth of July. It is greatly to be hoped the order will be rigidly enforced. It has become quite common to begin to burn patriotic powder several weeks in advance of the day fixed by history and custom as consecrated to the reign of racket and already Fort Wayne is suffering the annoyance of it.

The big packing interests of the country are to be consolidated into a combination about the size of the steel trust. That is to say that five or six of the largest meat packing concerns in the United States are to combine with $1,000,000,000 capital and put under control of one huge corporation the business now controlled by agreement of the same concerns. The advantage may not be different, but it is apt to be more secure. Meanwhile the suits against the beef trust are pending, with no hint as to what the result will be. The packers, however, doubtless feel that what is lawful for the steel trust will be lawful for themselves and that their mistake was not in holding up the people, but in not incorporating to do it instead of operating through a "gentlemen's agreement."

Col. Henry Watterson has been preaching democratic harmony and return of the democratic party to the policies and leaders of former days, but he is evidently desperately particular as to whom the old leaders shall be. In a terrific blast at ex-President Cleveland Colonel Watterson makes wholly clear that the Princeton sage is not one of the leaders he has in mind. Mr. Cleveland's appearance at the Tilden club meeting in New York Thursday night and the speech he made has stirred Colonel Watterson to the depths. "A death's head at the feast," is the way he puts it and then goes on to make a case of his charge that it was Mr. Cleveland who wrecked the democratic party, notwithstanding he twice led it to victory. Colonel Watterson sets out with some truth that Mr. Cleveland, though wise in statecraft, firm of purpose and courageous in performance of duty, lacked the essential qualities of leadership. He need hardly be so bitter in discussing it. He rather raises the belief that he finds it impossible to forgive Mr. Cleveland for sweeping the country ten years ago after the Kentucky colonel had oracularly trumpeted the prediction that in following Cleveland's leadership in that year the democratic party would "march through a slaughter house into an open grave." Mr. Cleveland did lack the elements of conquering leadership. He bound few men to him and he drove many from him. He was at times fatuously obstinate and he either knew not how or did not care to fuse the party elements into a homogeneous body. But Mr. Cleveland is not responsible for all that happened to the democratic party. Moreover, Colonel Watterson should have taken the former president at his word and assume that he is in retirement—retirement absolute and irrevocable. Colonel Watterson had no need to make a meal off of the late democratic leader. May he forbear to pick his bones for lunch.

A FAMOUS BREEDER OF DOGS

MAHLON HELLER, OF THIS CITY, SUBJECT OF ATTENTION.

"The American Field" Devotes Three Columns to an Account of His Labors.

The current number of "The American Field," one of the leading sporting papers of America, publishes a three column interview with Mahlon Heller, of this city, on the subject of breeding English setters and mentions a large number of famous dogs bred by Mr. Heller, a number of which gained national reputations. Preceding the interview the "Field" publishes a brief biography of the well known gentleman in the following graceful language:

"The history of the English setter in America is inseparable from the name of Col. Mahlon Heller, yet of the famous breeders of a score of years ago he is probably today the least known. Mr. Heller is a resident of Fort Wayne, Ind., and has the distinction of being the oldest breeder of English setters in the United States. Aside from this, perhaps, no dogs have been more appreciated by numbers of eminent sportsmen than those bred by him. Like others, Mr. Heller has passed through a vast amount of experience, both serious and comic, in a tolerably long life. Whenever fortune was in the ascendant an ill was close in his wake. Mr. Heller was born at the village of Bushkill, Pike county, Pa., February 24, 1831, consequently he is in his seventy-second year. Bushkill, Lehman township, is a precinct that gave Henry Clay but one vote for president at the election held in 1844, and that vote was cast by Dr. Linderman, whose son, Henry R., afterwards became director of the United States mint, and for which vote the old doctor received a very handsome rifle from his whig friend of Easton, Pa., Richard Broadhead, an uncle of Henry R., and who became United States senator subsequently.

"When Mr. Heller became of sufficient age, he was sent to school three months of the year at the proverbial "little red school house on the hill." When he was old enough to secure bait he spent his spare hours angling for trout in the little Bushkill, of which he always secured his share. At an early age he went to work on a farm, and later in the tannery or the saw mill, all of which his father owned and managed. Soon after he had passed his first score of years he would, at intervals, for a change, leave the paternal roof and secure employment as clerk in a general store at Stroudsburg, Pa.

"In 1857 and 1858 he was employed superintending the building of five miles of macadamized road in Bucks county, Pa. The interval from this time until 1865 he spent at his native place, two years of which time he conducted a country store. In July, 1865, he was employed by a Philadelphia company to superintend the building of oil wells on the Allegheny river in Venango county, 'which as usual,' he writes, 'ended with no benefit to myself or anyone else, and thousands of dollars were expended.' In December, 1867, he started a coal yard, but disposed of it at the end of three months. In March, 1868, he made a visit to his brother, living in Allen county, Indiana, but that visit has never been consummated—it has now been extended over thirty-four years.

"In 1872 Mr. Heller was elected to the Indiana legislature, and re-elected in 1874, and in 1875 he had the honor of nominating Joseph E. McDonald for United States senator. He is now employed in the law office of the Hon. Henry Colerick, known as the 'little giant of the Indiana bar.'"

YOUNG LADIES GRADUATED

ST. AUGUSTINE'S COMMENCEMENT HELD.

Creditable Program is Rendered by the Pupils—Attendance Unusually Large.

Commencement exercises of St. Augustine academy were held in Library hall last evening before one of the largest audiences that has ever witnessed the graduation of pupils of the school. The rain kept quite a number away, but in spite of this the hall was nearly filled.

The program was a very pleasing one, consisting of musical numbers and the rendition of "Joan of Arc." The operetta was composed by the pupils of the academy, and was very cleverly given. The young ladies who took the principal parts were: Loretta Logan, as Joan; Jeannette Muhler as King Charles VII.; Mary Kane, as Queen Isabel; Anna McNamara, as Philip, Duke of Bergundy; Frances Welsh, as Duke of Orleans. The acts were interspersed with musical numbers, among them being several ensemble selections, which were very smoothly given. A feature of the evening was the singing of a children's song, entitled, "Dollie's Laundry," by a chorus of fifty little people, the accompaniment being played by two little girls.

Miss Loretta Logan received the gold medal for excellence in deportment, and Miss Carroll Sheridan received the prize for highest average, Miss Letty Krumlauf taking second. The prize for regular attendance was won by Miss Frances Kane, and Miss Beatrice Kinder won honors in music. The following young ladies were entitled to draw for the medal for deportment: Misses Loretta Logan, Jeanette Muhler, Letty Krumlauf, Margaret Dittoe, Jennie Dooley, Irene Hutzell, Maude Muhler, Frances Veith, Alice Dittoe, Mary Lowry, Rose Geary, Violet Kuntz, Evelyn Mommer, Anna Surfus, Gertrude Hoke, Bernadette Getz, Mary Koester, Merle Rudd, May Pangratz, Gertrude Reilly, Carroll Sheridan, Juanita Ware, Edith Monahan, Mary Havert, Eva Burke, Helen Travers, Edna Bricker.

The following pupils were barred from drawing for the medal on account of late entrance, but are honorably mentioned: Misses Mary Kane, Winifred Callahan, Frances Welch, A. McNamara, Mary Moran, Alice Dooley, Helen Franke, Gertrude Raidy, Venita Dyer, Celeste Bloom, Mary Ryan, Margaret Monahan, Louise Irwin, Cleona Smythe, Henrietta Ader, Celeste Dinnen, Agnes Logan, Edna Joly, Emma Schmieman, Esther Fox, Linda McKinnie, Alma Dreier and Florence Baker.

DRIVEN CRAZY BY WHITE CAPS.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—Henry Deming, who was so mercilessly beaten by white caps in Monroe county two weeks ago, is a raving maniac as a result of his cruel punishment. Ever since the night of the whipping he has been morose and taciturn, and when he talked at all it was on the subject of his treatment and the disgrace that had been placed upon him. While in Bloomington yesterday he suddenly began shrieking and moaning and calling upon the citizens to protect him from his enemies. He was restrained with difficulty and finally placed in jail. He imagines that the white caps are trying to get him and pleads piteously for protection against them.

FIRE ON SHIPBOARD.

San Francisco, June 21.—That the British ship Monkbarns, which has arrived here, 149 days from Liverpool, ever reached her destination, is due to the gallant fight against fire made for four days and nights by Captain McNeeley and his crew. The Monkbarns left Liverpool January 22. All went well until February 21, when, at 4:30 a. m., smoke was discovered coming out of the ventilators leading to the forehold. An investigation revealed the fact that the cargo was on fire. Four holes were cut in the deck and water was pumped on the blazing merchandise until the flames were subdued sufficiently to allow sailors to descend into the hold, fix tackle to the smouldering bales and hoist them to the deck, from where they were promptly thrown overboard. Nearly all the cargo in the forward hold was jettisoned before the fire was extinguished. Little harm was done to the hull of the ship. The cargo jettisoned and in which the fire started, by spontaneous combustion, it is thought, consisted of gakum, felt and chemicals.

CHURCH FOR UNION LABOR.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—A church for organized labor in which denomination will not be considered is to be established in Marion, Ind. Any person who worships God can become a member. Already much has been done toward the promotion of a congregation and the Central Trades Council will be asked to take charge of the matter within the next ten days and see that the church is established. It will be called the people's church.

The money for the pastor's salary and for maintaining the church will be contributed by organized labor, so much being added to the union card every month. It is said that 10 cents added to every union card in the city each month will net $400, and this amount is expected to pay all expenses and a pastor's salary.

HE TRICKS THE GRAND JURY.

Peru, Ind., June 21.—John Hayes, the negro who shot and killed Clarence Gillespie on Sunday for singing "Good Morning Carrie," is credited with having tricked the grand jury. He managed to get the impression abroad that he would plead guilty to a charge of murder in the second degree. The grand jury, to get rid of him at once, promptly returned an indictment on that charge. Hayes now refuses to plead guilty and there is much indignation in consequence.

OHIO PLANS QUARANINE.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—The state health officials have been notified that the Ohio officials are contemplating a quarantine against Indiana on account of the prevalence of small pox in many counties, which will cause Indiana to face a situation similar to that which existed in Kentucky a short time ago. Secretary Hurty is authority for the statement that Ohio contemplates such action. He is doing all in his power to stamp out the disease.

WAIF TO BE HEIRESS.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—Miss May Nickum, aged 16 years, adopted daughter of C. W. Nickum, is found to be an heiress to a large property in Henry county. The girl was left an orphan at the age of 4 years and for four years thereafter lived in an asylum. She was adopted by strangers. Two brothers were also sent to the same asylum. One is now in West Virginia, the other in Indiana.

INDIANA BANKER TO RETIRE.

Bourbon, Ind., June 21.—James H. Matchette, president of the Exchange bank for the past twenty years, retired from active business yesterday, when he transferred all of his deposits and securities to the First State bank, which began business April 19 of this year. Mr. Matchette has been engaged in the banking business at this place since 1880.

ENTERS VICIOUS LION'S CAGE.

Logansport, Ind., June 21.—Clarence Russey, a Logansport clothing clerk, entered the cage of the vicious lion at the Elks' carnival midway last night against the protestations of his friends, but emerged safely after drinking a bottle of wine with the trainer.

LYNCH CASE GOES OVER.

London, June 21.—Col. Arthur Lynch, member-elect of parliament for Galway, and formerly of the Boer army, who is in custody on the charge of high treason, was today again remanded until June 24, witnesses in the case not having arrived in London.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN WHO PRAISE PERUNA.

THREE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Worn Out And Nervous Regained Their Health And Beauty By Taking Peruna.

Miss Florence Allan, a beautiful Chicago girl, writes the following to Dr. S. B. Hartman concerning his catarrhal tonic, Peruna:

75 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill.

"As a tonic for a worn-out system, Peruna stands at the head in my estimation. Its effects are truly wonderful in rejuvenating the entire system. I keep it on hand all the time, and never have that 'tired feeling,' as a few doses always make me feel like a different woman."—Florence Allan.

Thousands of women suffer from systemic catarrh. This is sure to produce such symptoms as cold feet and hands, sick headache, palpitation of the heart and heavy feelings in the stomach.

Then begins a series of experiments. They take medicine for sick headache. They take medicine for nervous prostration, for palpitation of the heart, for dyspepsia. None of these medicines do any good because they do not reach the cause of the complaint.

Peruna at once mitigates all these symptoms by removing the cause.

Systemic catarrh is the trouble. Systemic catarrh pervades the whole system, deranges every organ, weakens every function. No permanent cure can be expected until the systemic catarrh is removed.

This is exactly what Peruna will do.

Miss Cullen Was Exhausted From Over Study.

Miss Rose Cullen, President of the Young Woman's Club, Butte, Montana, writes:

921 Galena street, Butte, Mont.
Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"Peruna has many friends in Butte. I cannot say too much in praise of it. While finishing school I became very nervous and exhausted from overstudy. I was weak and sick, and could neither eat, sleep nor enjoy life. A couple bottles of Peruna put new life in me. I find by having it in the house and taking a dose off and on it keeps me in fine health. A large number of my friends place Peruna at the head of all medicines."—Rose Cullen.

Peruna is especially adapted to protecting against and curing nervous diseases of run-down women, as the testimonial of Miss Cullen indicates.

Miss Blanche Myers, 3139 Penn street, Kansas City, Mo., has the following to say of Peruna:

"During each of the past four seasons I have caught a severe cold, when suddenly chilled after an evening party, and catarrh for several weeks would be the result. One bottle of Peruna cured me, and I shall not dread colds any more as I did."—Blanche Myers.

An excellent little treatise on "Health and Beauty," written especially for women, by Dr. Hartman, will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

TRAMPS KILLED IN WRECK.

Fairbury, Neb., June 21.—One man is dead, two others are buried in the wreck and believed to be dead, and three trainmen are injured as the result of a freight train leaving the track on the Rock Island road at Thompson, six miles west of here, last evening. Eighteen cars of merchandise followed the tender of the engine into the ditch and blockaded the track for eight hours. Ten tramps were riding on the train on their way to the Kansas wheat fields. One of them was pulled out of the wreck in an unconscious condition and brought to this city, where he later died. His name is unknown. Two others were buried in the wreck and are supposed to be dead. Conductor Alcott and two brakemen were slightly injured. The wreck was supposed to have been caused by spreading rails.

HENRY WATTERSON FLAYS FORMER PRESIDENT.

SAYS HE BETRAYED PARTY

DISAPPROVES OF RENEWED POLITICAL ACTIVITY.

ACCUSES HIM OF VANITY

SCORCHING EDITORIAL IN COURIER-JOURNAL.

Louisville, Ky., June 21.—Under the caption, "Death's Head at the Feast," Henry Watterson has the following to say editorially in today's Courier-Journal regarding Mr. Cleveland's speech at the Tilden club banquet:

"The democratic party is not so

HENRY WATTERSON.

rich either in leadership or in position of strategic advantage that it can afford to reject good counsels from any quarter, but surely it has the right to draw the line on Grover Cleveland.

WAS PARTY'S UNDOING.

"To Mr. Cleveland's insufficiency, to use no harsher term, it owes its undoing. The claim that he is the one man who has led it to a national victory in forty years falls to the ground when it is recalled that in 1884 he won the election by a doubtful margin in the state of New York, which he carried the year before by a majority of nearly two hundred thousands; that in 1888 he lost the election through his fatuous vanity and self-confidence, and that in 1892 the Homestead riots, which transferred the vote of the labor unions bodily from the republicans to the democrats, made the defeat of the democratic ticket impossible. One star at least shone over Mr. Cleveland's cradle. He was born to good luck, and he was destined to be president."

Then after a review of Cleveland's administration, Mr. Watterson continues:

MAN OF FORCE.

"Those who know him will not deny to Mr. Cleveland a personality all his own. He is a man of great force of will and dominancy of character. Democrats have a superstition in favor of what is called 'Jacksonian firmness.' Courage, indeed, is a popular attribute with all classes of people. Mr. Cleveland has gained largely in popular favor by reason of the ascription of a sturdiness and integrity which his panegyrists have assiduously cultivated. Neither his honesty nor his hardihood need be gainsaid, in order to prove his deficiency as a party leader, though both have been most valiantly assailed, and, having no personal ill will to gratify at his expense, we shall not stop to inquire where the trophies of either may be on exhibition.

"It is enough to declare that he found the party as Mr. Tilden had made it—a moral unit, a great, compact body of fighting men; and that, having twice betrayed it—we will not say conscientiously, for he betrayed it for his own selfish end—he left it leaderless and divided to the mercy of the wind and waves of factionalism, called into being by his own lack of generosity and foresight.

BLOCKED THE WAY.

"Even down to the Chicago convention of 1896 Mr. Cleveland stood in the middle of the road blocking the way alike of friend and foe who might decry him or seek the nomination of that convention. He could not be induced to efface himself. Whilst he was from day to day pretending that he would issue a farewell address to his party, taking himself from out the range of possible nominees, a member of his cabinet without rebuke was permitted earnestly to urge him for a fourth time upon the party. He literally held Carlisle whilst Carlisle's enemies 'skinned' him. But later along, when a sacrificial nomination was in issue, he was prompt, even vociferous in his refusal to consider it. In a word, he was a receptive candidate for a fourth nomination; he thought the factional trouble in the party would bring this about; and—well—we saw what we saw. We have been there and we have returned, and, to make a long story short, we know what we know.

A HATEFUL RE-ENTRY.

"It seems a kind of irony that it should be a Tilden club to welcome Mr. Cleveland's hateful re-entry into political activeness. Mr. Tilden died with words of scorn and contempt upon his lips for Grover Cleveland. He understood perfectly the coarse texture of Mr. Cleveland's physical and mental make-up; his obtuse selfishness, his ignorant obstinacy, his vulgar self-assertion, his indefatigable duplicity. That Mr. Cleveland should put himself forward as a conjecturable party leader is proof of a self-confidence which would be sublime if it were not sinister, because leadership with him means office, and nothing but office.

"Such well-turned disclaimers as that which irradiated his elsewise ajdly phrased speech of Thursday night mean nothing to those who are familiar with his peculiar methods. They know for a certainty that Mr. Cleveland never put himself to the trouble of a public appearance without a definite objective point, and that this objective point always relates to his own appetite and interest.

AN OFFICE SEEKER.

"From the day he was one and twenty till now he has been an office seeker. He never drew a disinterested inspiration in all his life. We are not permitted, therefore, to see in this artfully timed and ostentatious reappearance upon the scene from which he withdrew into the conspicuous shade of a great university anything except the organization of a presidential boom, as it is called.

"We rather think the party will agree without much division, that it has had its fill of Mr. Cleveland. The idea of his nomination in 1904 is little short of ridiculous. He would be hailed by the republicans as the Diaz of democracy—that is, as its only, oniest captain-general. It is safe to say that as a candidate for a third term in the white house, and for the fourth time a presidential nominee, he could not carry a contested district in the United States.

"The Tilden club has decidedly not put its best foot foremost. But rather, as the saying is, it has 'put its foot in it.'

"The name of Cleveland may still be a name to conjure with for the republicans. With the democrats of the west and south it is simply hateful. Addressing it, the party might paraphrase the famous words of Rip Van Winkle, 'I got enough, and I know when I got enough,' though it would hardly be able to complete the sentence and to add, 'I am glad when I got enough.' The substance of what Mr. Cleveland said was done in his characteristic vein of felicitous subtlety, but of which one of the fables tells of a certain animal with sad memories in mind, saying in response to the polite invitation of a certain other animal, 'Mr. Fox, you talk too well.'"

STOLE $1,000 WORTH OF SILK.

Attica, Ind., June 21.—Thieves took $1,000 of silks from the store of J. Frank McDermond Friday night. The men looked at silks yesterday about 4 o'clock and got the location in the storeroom. They then secreted themselves in the cellar and some time during the night took the silks, being careful to take none but black, put them in four large telescopes and made good their escape. The silks were the only things disturbed and this morning when the store was opened every door and window was locked precisely as the clerks left them last night. The key to a back door was afterwards found in a coalhouse together with a piece of colored silk which the thieves took by mistake.

DOGS AND PONIES ARE HERE

SIPE'S SPLENDID SHOWS ARRIVED AT 11 O'CLOCK.

Were Delayed by an Accident—Parade and Performances Today and Tonight.

The Sipe Educated Animal and Lilliputian shows were late in reaching Fort Wayne today, much to the disappointment of a big crowd of people that lined up in the down town portion of Calhoun street early this morning and for several hours stood patiently awaiting the coming of the parade. The time for its appearance passed, but still the crowd remained, for nobody seemed able to answer the deluge of inquiries as to the reason for its non-appearance.

It was 11 o'clock before the train bearing the exhibition rolled into Fort Wayne, and the delay was caused by an accident to one of the big cars which make up the circus train. Leaving Kankakee, Ill., where the exhibition was given yesterday, the trucks beneath one of the freight cars broke, and some time was consumed in making the repairs. The new journals were rough and in this shape high speed was impossible. The train simply had to creep toward Fort Wayne.

Once here, however, the army of employes set about with a rush to make up for lost time. The wagons and other paraphernalia were hurried to the grounds near the base ball park and until the big tents were erected the scene was one of the liveliest activity. A morning parade was impossible, but this feature was given this afternoon, and those disappointed this morning who made an additional trip down town to see it this afternoon were more than repaid. The Sipe show is well known in Fort Wayne, and it is always a favorite, but the parade today was one of the very best ever given here. One is amazed, not alone with the beauty but with the magnitude of the exhibition, for in the parade this afternoon were a total of forty-three wagons, drawn by 190 handsome ponies, in addition to the splendid collection of dogs, monkeys, etc., that is always such an attractive feature of the Sipe exhibition.

The Sipe show is an Indiana institution, for its headquarters are at Kokomo, but it is favorably known all over the country. This year some notable additions have been made to the excellent features which have delighted audiences in former years, and the performance is in every way stronger and more admirable than ever before. In the three rings and upon the elevated stage is kept going continuously a repertoire of really high-class features. A number of standard circus acts are seen with the exhibition this year for the first time, in addition to the performance of the dogs, ponies and other animals, and the hippodrome races now shown for the first time prove another pleasing feature. The Sipe exhibition is clean and delightful throughout and surely merits the tremendous success that is attending it. Afternoon and evening performances are given today, and the next date is at Akron, Ohio.

MRS. WILLIAM BARRET RIDGELY

Baltimore, June 21.—Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely, wife of the comptroller of the currency, died late last night at the Johns Hopkins hospital in this city after an operation for appendicitis. She was operated on Thursday night and was supposed to have been in a very favorable condition until last night when a turn for the worse was observed. Mrs. Ridgely was a daughter of United States Senator Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, who with Mr. Ridgely was with her when she expired. Her remains will be taken to Springfield, Ill., for burial.

Mrs. Ridgely was very popular in Washington society, where she was a leader.

WASHINGTON VS. CLEVELAND.

The Washington and Cleveland base ball clubs will arrive in this city tomorrow at noon and in the afternoon at 3 o'clock will play a regular championship game of ball at League park. In tomorrow's game the sensational player of the decade, Lajoie, will play second base for Cleveland and a number of faces familiar to Fort Wayne sportsmen will be seen. Among them will be Bey, last year with Indianapolis; Hickman, an old interstate player once with New Castle; Gochnauer, with last year's Dayton team; Streit, last year pitching for Grand Rapids; Moore, also a pitcher in the Western association last year; Delehanty, one of the brothers of the famous Delehanty family of ball players; Keister, with last year's St. Louis club; Carrick, an old Fort Wayne Interstate pitcher, and several others. TELEPHONE WORK AT MUNCIE

NEW INDEPENDENT SYSTEM NEARS COMPLETION.

Fort Wayne Company Is Rushing the Work of Construction—Elwood Plant Soon Ready.

Muncie, Ind., June 21.—The Gas Belt Construction company, of Fort Wayne, which has the contract for putting in the new telephone system for the Delaware and Madison Counties Telephone company, has ordered 60,000 feet of cable, the amount of cable estimated to be necessary for the Muncie system.

It is thought that 60,000 feet will be enough for both the underground and pole cable systems. The underground conduits are entirely completed and the cables will be drawn through as soon as they are received. Work on the ground line is progressing rapidly and two-thirds of the poles are now in position. The wires will be strung on these poles within the next few days.

The company has received 1,000 telephones of the best make from the Kellog Switch board and Supply company of Chicago. A second shipment will arrive later.

The building which the Delaware-Madison company is constructing in East Jackson street has reached its third story. It is to be completed by August 1. The building will contain the general offices, switchboards, batteries, and all necessary equipments of the system. It will be three stores in height and will cost $15,000 when completed.

The toll lines from Anderson to Alexandria will be connected and in working order within the next two weeks. Construction of the toll lines from Anderson to Muncie will then be started at once. From Muncie the line will extend on to Eaton.

George F. Trier, secretary of the Gas Belt Construction company, which is also putting in a new telephone system for the Delaware and Madison Counties Telephone company in the Elwood plant, stated that the plant would be entirely completed within a month or five weeks. The cables are now being drawn and the switch board will be in position within two weeks.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, June 21.—Clearing weather over the greater part of the American wheat belt and in England broke wheat prices badly at the opening today. The only locality where it was reported raining was Oklahoma. This put bears in fine feather. Liverpool cables showed their prices in spite of the sharp advance here yesterday. The only bullish influence was a continued but small advance at Paris. Bulls who had paper profits hurried to get what they could of them by unloading and as a result July opened raggedly ¾c to ⅞c lower at 73⅛c to 73⅛c. Receipts were rather small and the cash demand was fair, so that outside influences still argued decline. There was a small recovery from bottom prices and July steadied around 73⅝c. St. Louis was an influence, breaking on the fine weather prospects. Local receipts were 24 cars, 4 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 274 cars, making a total for the three points of 298 cars, against 239 last week and 388 a year ago.

Profit-taking brought July wheat down to 73c, but there was at once a fair demand and a brisk recovery. July closed weak, however, ⅝@¾c lower at 73¼@73⅜c.

Corn did not respond early to the break in wheat. Frosts were reported in Nebraska and although trading was not heavy enough commission house buying orders came into the pit to hold prices up. July opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 65⅛c to 65⅜c, touched 65⅞c and steadied near 65⅝c. Receipts were liberal at 271 cars, with 14 contract grade.

Corn maintained its somewhat independent position among the grains. July closed firm, ⅜c higher at 65⅞c.

Oats were a little lower with wheat and on the improved weather. Receipts were good and there was some local selling. The cash demand, however, was sharp and offerings of spot were light. July opened ⅛c lower at 39⅜c, sold up a shade and dipped to 39⅛c. Receipts were 200 cars.

Provisions were strong again on small hog receipts. Offerings were light and packers bought freely. There was some realizing, but not enough early to break prices. July pork opened unchanged to 2½c up at $17.87½ to $17.90; September pork sold at $18.12½. July lard started unchanged at $10.45, dipped 2½c and advanced to $10.47½, and July ribs 5c up at $10.60 and sold at $10.77½.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, June 21.—The majority of stocks showed higher prices at the opening, the gain reaching a point in St. Louis Southwestern preferred. There were some exceptions among the coalers and specialties. Sugar declining ¾. The dealings were on a small scale and not widely distributed.
Buying of United States Steel stocks and the southwestern railroads gave increased firmness to the general market. St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Texas and Pacific, Kansas and Texas preferred, Canadian Pacific, St. Joseph and Grand Island first and second preferred advanced from 1 to 1¾. Sugar rose slightly above yesterday's close, but Anaconda, Michigan Central and New York Air Brake fell 1 to 1½ under.
A reaction of ¼ in United States Steel was followed elsewhere. The large loan expansion shown by the bank statement was considered unfavorable. Continental Tobacco preferred lost 2⅞. Ice preferred 2¼. Lead preferred nearly 2 and North American and General Electric a point or more. There were advances of about a point in Pacific Mail, Cotton Oil and Corn Products and 1½ in Northern Central. The closing was dull and easy.

GREAT HOARDS OF GOLD.

European Governments Have Immense Treasure Locked in Their War Chests.

The disappearance of large quantities of gold and silver, but more particularly the former, from the coinage circulation of a country is one of the things that no government has been able to prevent, and the question what becomes of these metals is one enshrouded in more or less of mystery. After counting all gold and bullion and making liberal allowance for the amount of gold used in the manufactures and arts there remains an immense shortage that is accounted for on the hypothesis that the principal European governments have withdrawn it from circulation to hoard it in their war chests.

The amount of money thus withdrawn from the general use varies year by year in accordance with the state of prosperity prevailing, although this rule is variable. During the years 1893-94 these foreign hoards of gold were increased to the extent of $328,000,000, while the output of gold from the mines of the world during the same years amounted to only $338,000,000, or $10,000,000 more than was hoarded. During the same period of time there was used in the arts about $120,000,000, and $130,000,000 in gold was retained by the east, by Africa and by Central and South America. As an inevitable consequence the circulation was depleted during these two years by about $240,000,000.

That such a state of affairs is a menace to civilization goes almost without saying, and at intervals attempts have been made to counteract the hoarding habit that the most powerful of the European nations have adopted. True, the vast amount mentioned above represented the high-water mark, and in the intervening years since 1894 the withdrawals from circulation have not been so great, but the figures are cited merely to illustrate the fabulous amount of gold that is being secretly accumulated by the governments of Russia, Germany, France and Austria. In England and also in this country the people are entitled to know where every dollar comes from and where it goes to, an exception of no great importance by comparison with the secret hoarding of governments being the amounts set apart for the secret service. But cool-headed financiers of the Old World have estimated that between the four nations named there is a sum of quite $6,000,000,000 stored away in reserve, and to guard which the most extraordinary precautions are taken and the most rigid secrecy preserved regarding the amounts put by year by year.

Indeed, a large number of financial experts allege that the amount named is absurdly below the mark, and, as a matter of fact, there is no way by which an accurate guess may be made at the amount hidden by these four great European governments. As illustrative of this fact may be remembered the explanation given by a German statesman why it was that Count Witte, the Russian minister of finance, failed to float a big loan in Paris two years ago, though the matter was finally arranged later.

"The reluctance of the foreign money markets to make any further advances to the Russian treasury," said this gentleman, "is because none of us is able to understand the extraordinary policy pursued by the Russian government, for the last forty years at any rate, in drawing gold from every conceivable source, foreign as well as domestic, and hoarding it. The official reports give the cash reserve on January 1, 1899, as about $100,000,000, but these figures are misleading, for it is known for a positive fact that the imperial treasury at St. Petersburg contains twelve times that amount in gold, while, according to financial experts and economic authorities, it is estimated that the specie reserve of the Russian government amounts to something near $5,000,000,000."

This statesman, whose name carries weight on economic questions in America as in Europe, proceeded to outline the various means by which Russia is amassing such a fabulous store of gold, and gave it as the reason why the Russian loan had not been floated that European governments were disquieted at what such a peculiar policy might forebode.

The suspicions that are fastened upon Russia, however, largely emanate from the imaginative brains of the English financiers, who, in common with a certain section of the leaders of public opinion, suffer from chronic Russophobia. Nor was this feeling allayed in any measure when, in the earlier stages of the Boer war, the Bank of England applied to the Russian government for a loan of $120,000,000 in gold for a term of six months and met with a refusal. This application had been prompted by the knowledge that the Russian government has the largest stock of gold in the world, and the refusal lost none of its sharpness by reason of the fact that, in 1894, when it appeared that there might be a necessity for this country to raise money by a bond issue, Russia voluntarily made overtures to the United States and offered to loan just what money might be required. That, at least, was the statement made at the time and it was never contradicted.

In the face of the disquiet caused by the financial policy being followed it is curiously interesting to note how and where Russia stores this veritable mountain of gold. There is reason why the people of this country should know something about Russia's strong box, because an American engineering firm made it. It is kept in the gloomy fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul at Kronstadt, and as during its construction several men were accidentally crushed to death while laboring in the course of their duty attention was focused upon the work. This particular vault is one of the largest in the world. It does not rest on solid rock, but on piers of steel, and sentries command every part of its exterior, sides, bottom and top. Its three compartments have iron doors weighing 20,000 pounds each, and its walls of iron and chrome steel welded are one foot thick. The custodians of this treasure house are all picked men and are sworn to remain at their posts during the term of their lives. They neither know nor are known by the other inhabitants of the huge fortress. In addition to the vast sum of gold stored there are imperial and other treasures to the value of over $50,000,000 in one of the compartments of the vault. Only three men in the world know how to open the doors—the American designer, the czar and the life treasurer, a trusted servitor specially appointed, and who has never left the confines of Kronstadt since his appointment to office.

All this smacks of medieval times, but instant arrest is the least that may befall any prying individual who ventures near the iron fortress or the still more gloomy Schlusselburg, a second fortress around which as severe restrictions are drawn as around the one already described. But it is not to be supposed for one moment that Russia alone adopts the arbitrary measures here indicated. The plan of Germany's strong room has been designed and its contents guarded with a secret efficiency equal to anything that Russia has done in the same direction.

The historic fortress of Spandau, within easy distance of Berlin, is where the accumulated treasure of Germany is stored, and it has been in past years declared that the amount of gold there deposited is never allowed to decline below the amount of the war indemnity forced from France in cash, namely $1,000,000,000. Whether that amount was fixed upon the public mind in the years immediately following the Franco-German war as a result of the bellicose sentiment then prevailing may not be known, but, at all events, it is conceded that this governmental hoard is being added to whenever opportunity serves.

Miss Anna O'Hearn and Miss Ella Kahler will go to Chicago this evening to stay over Sunday.

SHOPMEN'S DAY

OVER 2,500 HAPPY PEOPLE GO TO ROME CITY.

THE EXCURSION A SUCCESS

THOUGH RAIN INFLUENCED SOME TO REMAIN HOME.

AMERICANS BEAT BRITONS

GET CONTRACT FOR LARGEST POWER PLANT IN WORLD.

The fifteenth annual excursion and picnic of the Pennsylvania employes, held at Rome City today, was not as large as it would have been had the weather conditions been more favorable. About the time for retiring last night it was raining hard and there were occasional showers throughout the night. On this account many who yesterday said they would go on the excursion changed their minds. "It will rain tomorrow," they argued, "and even if it does not rain during the time of the picnic, the grounds will be soaked and uncomfortably wet from this rain. I guess we will stay home." And they did. But there were people sufficient to fill 41 coaches who thought differently and each one of the four trains carried between 600 and 700 excursionists. Shopmen and their families made up the greater portion of the crowd, but every department of the road was fairly well represented. The City band went on the fourth train. The members met at the band room down town and marched to the depot at 6:50, rendering three marches en route, and they played several pieces at the depot while the trains were being loaded and sent out. Nearly every male excursionist was provided with fishing tackle and each family was provided with a big basket filled with edibles for the noontime lunch and a piece between times. In addition to the regular train crews, each train had a special committee whose duty was to look after the safety and comfort of the excursionists. Following is the personnel of the crews and committees:

First train—Conductor Stewart. Brakemen Quivey, Muldairy and Hotaling. Engineer A. Hiser. Fireman H. M. Turner, engine 57; committee—J. A. Graham, J. P. Disser, W. E. Dartnell, H. S. Borhek, F. S. Doriot, H. T. Hogan, W. H. Tigar, F. J. Mannix, A. Barbier, C. H. Daesler, Gard Tuckey, B. M. Huchins, J. H. Hobrock and Sylvester McMahon.

Second train—Conductor Malone, Brakemen Moriarity, Surdan and Hall, Engineer F. Hodges, Fireman Tom Doyle, engine 16; committee—M. W. Kemp, F. H. Sweringen, J. T. Leach, H. Lagemann, L. E. Rehling, J. R. Kretsinger, L. G. Dailey, M. Hobrock, Adam LaMar, W. S. Cutshall, F. C. Smith, G. L. Wall, C. P. Cherry and E. Burr.

Third train—Conductor Coleman, Brakeman Travis. Engineer W. Mungovan, Fireman J. C. Williams; committee—W. E. Davis, G. A. Szink, A. S. Durnell, H. O. Durnell, J. J. Beugnot, W. Y. Cherry, L. G. Shirmeyer, J. Lennart, F. J. Scheid, C. Griswold, E. F. Tegtmeyer, C. A. Burchard, C. Scmidt and Martin Kramer.

Fourth train—Conductor Husbour. Brakemen Rhodes and Cook. Engineer A. Lopshire, Fireman Roy Jones; committee—J. H. Fry, B. F. Sarver, M. O. Ginty, C. L. Daesler, C. A. Henry, William Stephans, Allen Hamilton, Capt. H. Stoll, J. Neupher, Clarence Haynes, John Wallace, Theodore Bley, L. C. Steger and J. F. Patterson.

The first train reached the resort at 8:30 and the last one at 9:15 o'clock, no accident nor incident occurring en route to mar the pleasure of the party. When the trains reached the Rome City station, those who had been fortunate enough to engage a boat for the day hastened to the boat houses and the others made their way to Island park, where they soon divided into neighborhood and family groups and spread over the grounds. The exact number of excursionists will not be known until the return of the trains and the conductors make their reports, but the crowd is variously estimated at between 2,400 and 2,600. There were forty-one coaches, with every seat occupied, and figured upon a basis of sixty-five people to the car, which is about the right thing on this occasion it would put the figure at 2,665. It required three baggage cars to handle the lunch baskets, hammocks and other luggage taken by the excursionists.

In addition to the shopmen and their families, 346 persons went to Rome City this morning, most of them on the regular train, No. 7, which brings the total number of Fort Wayne people at the resort today upwards of 3,000. For the general public the company made a rate of seventy-five cents per round trip.

AMERICANS GOT CONTRACT.

The awarding to American firms of the contracts for building and equipping the electric power house for the Metropolitan District railway at Chelsea, London, was a much more important transaction than the brief Associated Press cablegram of last Wednesday indicated. Thursday's edition of the Pittsburg Dispatch gave an extensive account of the deal and in part said:

"The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company was yesterday awarded the contract by Charles T. Yerkes for the installation of the great power house for the Metropolitan District railway at Chelsea, London, at a cost of $3,000,000. James Stewart & Co., the well known Pittsburg contractors, who produced such a sensation in England by their work in connection with the British Westinghouse company, captured the contract after the warmest kind of competition, for the erection of the power house building, which will cost approximately $1,500,000. The power plant will be the largest in England and is to be completed within one year. English contractors made a desperate effort to capture the building contract to retrieve their reputation lost in the building of the Manchester works of the Westinghouse company and the Manchester depot of the Midland railroad.

"The high price of steel in the United States and the inability of the mills to give early delivery coupled with the fact that England has for some time been sending steel to this country, gave the British builders the hope that they could capture the work. James C. Stewart, who recently returned to England to take active charge of the Midland depot work at Manchester, hurried to Essen and Oberhausen and obtained options on 10,000 to 12,000 tons of steel needed, one of those giving an option being Krupp. Comparative early delivery was assured. With this buttoned in his pocket he made his bid and was successful, as announced in London yesterday.

"The power house building will be of brick and steel, 500 feet long and 170 feet wide, being 80 feet high to the coal bunkers. The equipment will be of the most modern type of Westinghouse engines and generators, the total horse power of the plant being estimated at 30,000. The engines will occupy the first floor and two stories of boilers will be built directly over the engines.

"Above the boilers will be the coal bunkers, which will be connected with the freight railroad and the Thames by traveling conveyors, enabling the economical handling of the coal. The generators will be direct-connected and the boilers will be supplied with modern American stokers. The plant will be one of the finest ever erected and will be about the size of the great Manhattan power house in London.

"The power house will be built in the very heart of London, in Chelsea, on the Thames, about two miles to the west of London bridge. It will be to the west of the houses of parliament, near one of the present stations of the Metropolitan. The road covers the heart of London in a great ellipse, that crosses the Thames in its underground circuit. Steam is used at present, and the large amount of sulphur in the coal and the great draught make it one of the most uncomfortable affairs to be imagined. The road is also operated as the trunk railroads are, with second and third-class compartments. This will be changed, as was done in the "tube," a uniform fare being charged and one class of compartments, similar to the American elevated railway cars, furnished.

"The work on the electrical machinery will probably be done both at the East Pittsburg and Manchester works, as the delivery is urgent. The Stewart company will secure its steel in London and will use British labor with American foremen, as was done at Manchester. The victory is one of the most important gained by Americans in many years and it will have the effect of influencing other English traction corporations to follow in the same line."

NEW INDIANA RAILROAD.

Portland, Ind., June 21.—F. L. Patrick, of Columbus, Ohio, builder of the Cincinnati, Richmond and Muncie railroad, was in the city last night and disclosed his plans for a road between Union City and Chicago, which will run diagonally across the northern section of the state on an air line. The road as thus projected would place Portland within 184 miles by rail of Chicago. The idea is to make the connection on the north with the Nickel Plate railroad at Knox, Ind.

The route as given by Mr. Patrick is as follows: Beginning at Union City, connecting there with the Dayton and Union; to Portland, crossing the Grand Rapids and Indiana and Lake Erie and Western; to Pennville, through Montpelier, crossing the Fort Wayne division of the Lake Erie and Western; to Van Buren, in the Grant county oil field, crossing the Clover Leaf there; thence Lincolnville, and from that point to Wabash, there crossing the Big Four and the Wabash. From the latter city the road is planned to run to Roann, striking the Eel River division of the Wabash, and on to Rochester, touching the Michigan City division of the Lake Erie and Western and the Chicago and Erie. This is as far as the road has been projected at present, but it is the intention to extend it to Knox, there connecting with the Nickel Plate and completing the air line.

In all of the cities through which the road is contemplated to pass applications have been made for subsidy elections, and these will all be over before the end of July. The city of Wabash has already voted $100,000 for a short line between there and Knox, and that subsidy has been assigned to this company. None of the cities through which the road has been planned to run have a direct Chicago or Cincinnati connection, and all are anxious for its building.

BECHTOL'S GOOD RUN.

Engineer John G. Bechtol and Fireman W. Kraus, with engine 39, made a very good run on the western division of the Pittsburg road a few evenings ago. The train was the eastbound limited, No. 2, with six cars, which was behind time when it passed through Plymouth, sixty-four miles west of this city. The run from that town to Fort Wayne was made in one hour and eight minutes, including three slow-downs. From Bourbon to Warsaw, fourteen miles, the train only consumed eleven minutes; from Columbia City to Arcola, ten miles, eight minutes were consumed, and from Bourbon to Fort Wayne, fifty-four miles, the distance was covered in fifty-four minutes, including slow-ups through Warsaw and the western part of this city. No. 39 is an E-2 engine.

BLICKENSDERFER RESIGNS.

Dr. J. E. Blickensderfer has retired from the board of medical examiners for the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief association and with his family will move to Oklahoma, where he will engage in the general practice of medicine. Dr. Blickensderfer was stationed in this city as assistant to Dr. E. F. Wagner for several months. Last November, when the northern district of the association was established, he was sent there as medical examiner and has since resided in Cadillac. His successor has not been named.

OLD SHOPMAN VERY SICK.

Casper Lahmkuhly is at St. Joseph hospital, under the care of Dr. L. T. Stuglis, suffering from a severe attack of Bright's disease. The patient is one of the oldest men in the employ of the Pennsylvania company, having worked in the blacksmith shop for nearly a third of a century. News of his unfortunate condition will be received sorrowfully by the men at the shop, who liked the old man for his kind heart and pleasant ways.

MACHINISTS INJURED.

J. J. Monroe and C. M. Hausbach, of the Wabash machine shops, were victims of accidents yesterday. The former was drawn into the machine he was operating by his coat sleeve catching upon a bolt and his arm was cut and bruised. After receiving attention from the company's local surgeon, Mr. Monroe was sent to the Peru hospital. Mr. Hausbach was handling a main rod of an engine, when the piece fell and crushed his fingers.

HAD A FINGER CRUSHED.

George Krock, of East Wayne street, employed in the Bass foundry, had a portion of the third finger of his left hand pinched off between castings yesterday. The digit was severed at the first joint. Dr. Schilling attended the unfortunate man. Mr. Krock has been employed at the foundry many years and this is the most serious accident that has fallen upon him during his long service.

MANAGER NELSON HOME.

Manager Nelson, of the Southwestern, arrived in the city this morning from a week's trip through the west on business, the greater part of the time being devoted to Wichita, Kan., where Mr. Nelson and his associates own the street railway. President McKinley, of the Southwestern company, is expected in the city late this afternoon for a brief visit.

RECEIVED NEW ENGINE.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana company this morning received a new passenger engine from the Juniata shops, which will go into service on the new trains tomorrow. This engine is of the GG-4-A, built for passenger or fast freight service. It was the intention to use it on the fourth excursion train this morning but it could not be got ready in time.

GOES TO NAVY YARDS.

Machinist Ed Rohan, who resigned his position at the Bass shops a few days ago, will leave tomorrow for Brooklyn, N. Y., where he will enter the government navy yards to work at his trade. The young man is a son of Capt. J. H. Rohan, county treasurer.

SHRINERS RETURNING.

Next Monday there will be a special train through this city, over the Nickel Plate, carrying Shriners from Cleveland and vicinity homeward from the meetings in San Francisco. The train will probably run as a second 4 and pass this point about 8 o'clock in the evening.

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE.

A bulletin was posted at the Wabash shops and on the other boards today announcing that tickets for the employes' excursion to Detroit would be placed on sale next Monday.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Norman Nestle, of the Wabash machine shop, is sick and off duty.

William Schafer, of the electric works, went to Rome City today for a two weeks' stay.

Gus Rogge, truckman at the Pittsburg freight house, is off duty on account of the illness of his wife.

Master Mechanic M. R. Coutant, of the Wabash, went to Peru this morning on business for the company.

W. E. Ninde, draughtsman, left yesterday for Syracuse, N. Y., where he will spend a three weeks' vacation.

L. L. Gloyd, checkman, and Truckmen W. A. McCall, F. E. Lewis and B. R. Baker, of the Pittsburg, are sick.

Charles J. Reelle, who was operated upon at the St. Joseph hospital by Dr. W. W. Barnett, is recovering nicely.

A car load of machinery, including a 1,200-light dynamo, left the Electric works this morning for Dodgeville, Wis.

William John, of the Pittsburg car shop, went to Grand Rapids this morning for a three days' visit with relatives.

A car load of ice machinery consigned to the Ferd. Heim Brewing company, Kansas City, left the Bass shops today.

It is expected that when the Wabash gets its line into Pittsburg fully 50 per cent. of its traffic will be low-class freight.

Nickel Plate Brakeman T. H. Gallivan is taking a few days' lay off to attend the pony show and look after private business.

Charles S. Keith, general freight and passenger agent of the Arkansas and Choctaw road, has resigned, and George W. Liley has been appointed his successor.

Mrs. A. M. Tower, wife of the air brake machine foreman at the Pittsburg shops, is visiting relatives in Springfield, Ill. She is accompanied by her daughter.

Firemen William Hurlburt, M. Griley, J. H. Fox and W. Deavens, of the Nickel Plate, are laying off in order to give the "extra" a chance to earn a few dollars.

On Monday a fast freight train on the Wabash was hauled from Lagro to Peru, nineteen miles, in twenty minutes, the fastest time ever made on the road with a freight train.

The Nickel Plate paymaster, who was here yesterday, is today paying employes in Stony Island and Chicago. Master Mechanic George James was here with the car yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fox, of Allegheny, Pa., arrived in the city last night and will remain here until Tuesday. Mr. Fox is general foreman of the Pennsylvania shops in Allegheny.

Richard Krough, engineer at the Bass street pump house, has resigned to go to California to work for his brother, John. The latter is interested in mining and is said to have been very successful.

Brakeman C. W. Smitley, who reported for duty on the Nickel Plate yesterday, after a long lay off, has been assigned to Conductor Walter Terry's crew, vice A. B. Conn, who has been placed on the extra list.

Samuel Higgins, superintendent of motive power of the Union Pacific, has accepted a similar position with the Southern railway. W. H. Thomas, whom he succeeds, will be retained in an advisory position.

Mrs. Charles Cousar, wife of the chemist at the Bass Foundry and Machine shops, left this morning for Chicago, where she will spend two months with her parents. Mrs. Cousar is accompanied by her children.

The consensus of expert opinion is that the twenty-our run between New York and Chicago was made so easily that the day is not far distant when the much talked of eighteen-hour trains between the two cities will be the fast schedule.

John H. Petgen, Grand Rapids and Indiana engineer, is taking a lay-off with a view of heading off an attack of rheumatism if possible. He was sorely afflicted with that disease several months ago, and now fears a return of the malady.

Operator James Finan, of Pittsburg, is in the city calling upon his old friends and former associates. He is taking his vacation, which expires Wednesday, and has been in Chicago and other western cities. Mr. Finan worked at his trade on the western division of the Pennsylvania several years.

There were eight or ten names added to the pay rolls at the Fort Wayne Electric works this morning, and two resignations. Among the new employes is Earl Klinger, who is given a position in the meter department. Elmer Shook resigned his position to take one with the Pacific Express company. Charles Clippinger, inspector in the meter department, quit to take a position elsewhere.

Killian Vordon, watchman at the Broadway encasing of the Pittsburg, accompanied his wife and two children to Defiance, Ohio, this afternoon, to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lear over Sunday. Mrs. Vordon and the children will remain there a week.

Passenger trains of the Toledo and Ohio Central will, after July 1, enter Toledo over the tracks of the Toledo Railway and Terminal company, using the Belt line from Funston to Wall Bridge, making its entrance much quicker than under present arrangements.

Surveys were commenced by the Wabash on Tuesday for its connection with the Union railroad, the line to extend from a point near Carnegie, on the main line of the Wabash (Pittsburg extension), to Finleyville. Work on its construction will be commenced without delay.

A Kansas City paper announces that several thousand harvest hands are wanted and that arrangements have been made for granting special excursion rates on the lines running out of that city. E. B. Howard has been appointed agent of the Missouri Free Employment Bureau, to take full charge of the business.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road will put on a Sunday train to Dayton and Cincinnati next Sunday, which will be in service throughout the summer should it be well patronized. The train will leave Fort Wayne at 5:30 and reach Cincinnati at 11 o'clock in the morning and returning leave Cincinnati at 8:30 in the evening.

There is no arrangement for excess fares on fast trains in the west, and each road is in position to carry passengers at the same rate as prevails on slower trains. This is causing friction, as the fares being the same, the traveler will take the train which takes him to his destination the quickest, and the inference is that if one road is handicapped in the contest so that it cannot make the speed the next move will be to get the business by offering a lower fare.

The practicability of telephoning and telegraphing from moving trains is to be tested in the near future by representatives of railway telegraph superintendents who are holding an annual convention in Chicago. Benson Bidwell, of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a paper which he read, suggested that communications could be had with moving trains if a trolley wire or third rail were placed alongside the track. The paper of Mr. Bidwell caused much discussion, and President J. H. Jacoby was authorized to appoint a committee to make a test along the line suggested.

REFUGEES AT THE LANDING STAGE, ST. PIERRE.

This view shows a group of refugees at the landing stage, St. Pierre. They are waiting for the arrival of the French cruiser Suchet, which has been transferring the inhabitants of the stricken island to points of safety. Driven terror stricken from their homes by the death dealing antics of Mont Pelee, these unfortunate islanders were left in a most pitiable condition.

CAME HERE AT AN EARLY DAY

MRS. ROSANNA PURMAN, WHO DIED AT MONROEVILLE.

Was the Mother of A. A. Purman, of This City—Mrs. John Steinhauser Dead—Mortuary Matters.

Funeral services were held in the Lutheran church at Monroeville yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Rosanna Purman, one of the pioneers of Allen county, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John M. Tryon, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Purman was the mother of Attorney A. A. Purman, of this city, and was very widely known in the eastern part of the county.

She was a native of Pennsylvania, born at Harrisburg seventy-nine years ago, and was the widow of the late Samuel Purman, whose death occurred several years ago. They came to Allen county in 1849, and for many years the family owned much of the land in the eastern part of the county. For a time they returned to Pennsylvania, but in 1870 again located in Allen county, which has since been Mrs. Purman's home. Surviving are six children—Andrew A. Purman, of Fort Wayne; Dr. D. M. Purman, of Phoenix, Ariz.; Samuel Purman, of Indianapolis; James Purman, of Montpelier, and David Purman and Mrs. Tryon, of Monroeville. Mrs. Purman was a woman of lofty character, widely known and universally esteemed. She had been for many years a devoted member of the Presbyterian church.

EXERCISE FOR ILLS.

Gymnastic exercises as a cure for special bodily deformities are being more and more prescribed by New York doctors, and there is an interesting class of persons, usually women, who undertake to instruct the patients as to the proper method of taking such exercise.

Defects of the feet and ankles, curvature of the spine, hollow chest, asymmetry of the shoulders, are all treated in this fashion, and plaster jackets and elastic stockings are giving way before this newer method of dealing with physical deformities. In many schools special curvature exercises are provided for individual children. A physician inspects the little ones from time to time to determine what special exercises they need, and to note the effect of exercises already tried, says the New York Sun.

Marvelous results have thus been obtained with maimed and deformed children. An account of some such would read like the testimonials issued by patent cure-alls. Even when cure has been found impossible, the effect of systematic special gymnastics is astonishing, as shown in the increased strength and activity of the little patients. It is even believed that such exercises have an important influence on the minds of children mentally defective.

In some instances the exercises are so simple that after a little instruction a parent, or even a child, can superintend them. In other cases the exercises have to be performed in a gymnasium, and in answer to the growing demand private gymnasiums have sprung up in various parts of the city. A physician usually recommends some gymnasium with which he is acquainted, and the teachers usually have close relations with the physicians. Gymnastic exercises are prescribed just as medicines are, and the patient goes with the prescription to the gymnasium teacher just as he would go to a druggist for pills or potions.

CONFETTI AND GRIPPE.

That the use of confetti should be largely responsible for the epidemic of influenza during February and March is an opinion which is gaining ground in the minds of Paris doctors. It was in 1892 that confetti was first extensively used in Paris, during the carnivals of Shrove Tuesday and Mid-Lent Thursday, and since then the dread scourge of influenza, with its attendant ills of pneumonia, bronchitis and other complaints, has raged during Lent in the French capital.

Experiments tried with guinea pigs, which consisted in simply giving them some confetti picked up in the streets, and making the animals eat the little pieces of paper, resulted in the death of every one of the animals from complaints resembling those from which human beings suffer during the influenza period. Confetti, say the doctors, may not actually start an epidemic, but it greatly assists in spreading it, and once you get such an epidemic fairly on the move it will find its way to other countries.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE CRAZE FOR PANAMA HATS

SOME OF THEM, IT IS SAID, COST HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS—

THEY DO NOT COME FROM PANAMA.

Five hundred dollars for a straw hat! Think of it! Enough with which to take a three months' holiday in Europe; enough to keep your son a year at college; enough to buy a small farm. And yet so astute a financier as Lyman Gage, ex-secretary of the treasury, recently paid that much for an extra fine Panama and reckoned, moreover, that he had made a good bargain. King Edward VII also cheerfully paid a Bond street merchant $460 to secure him "the finest Panama in London," while Jean de Reszke, the noted tenor, has paid the top-notch price—something under $600—to procure a similar object in America. Ex-Mayor Van Wyck, of New York, is chuckling over his success in securing a Panama which dealers have told him is superior in quality to either King Edward's or the one owned by Jean de Reszke. He paid $250. Droves of men are wearing straw hats each costing the price of a suit of clothes.

These instances of extravagance are not mentioned as a reflection upon the perpetrators, but merely to illustrate to what extent has spread "the Panama hat craze," one of the most expensive fashions ever adopted by men. Expensive because a Panama of even medium quality may not be had for less than $25, and if you aim to have one that may be tucked away in a vest pocket like a lead pencil or slipped through a finger ring the price is, to most persons, prohibitive. In spite of this costliness, however, Panama hats are being dispatched from South America absolutely in ship loads and about half the population of Ecuador are engaged in supplying that luxuries for the men of Yankeedom.

CRAZE BEGAN LAST YEAR.

"The craze" began last year and appeared only to be transient, but the enterprising merchants of our big cities foretold that this summer would find a demand far greater than the supply and they accordingly put in their orders about six months ago. Since then the Panama hat industry has become more lucrative than any other in that part of South America adjoining the isthmus and with the prospect of making a fortune in a few years many planters have abandoned the raising of coffee and rice. The mountain passes of the Andes from Chimborazo northward teem, day and night, with long columns of pack mules and ox-carts bearing their precious burden to Panama, which is the clearing house for hats. The streets of Panama itself are flanked with the establishments of hat brokers and half the city is engaged one way or other in helping to further this American "craze."

In our time it has been the exclusive privilege of women to spend large sums of money on hats. The fad of wearing real lace that is affected today is also a costly one. A smartly dressed woman will oftentimes wear two or three yards of Irish point lace that costs perhaps $400 a yard. It is this sort of thing that gives a father or husband "heart disease," a tragedy that has been so useful to joke writers and knockabout comedians.

But the tables are now reversed, and humorists, to be up-to-date must regild one of their stock commodities. It is the women now who gasp with astonishment when the head of the house comes home with a little wisp of straw which he cheerfully proclaims has cost him $40. Not only that, but he has the effrontery to boast of the purchase and goes strutting about because Brown or Jones has a Panama hat that is woven in two places, while his, proud man, has never a seam.

Among the false notions regarding Panama hats, and there are prevalent a great many, is that of its origin. The name, in the first place, would lead one to think that the fabric is manufactured in Panama, whereas the fact is that Ecuador, Colombia and Guayaquil produce two-thirds of all the Panamas in the market. The city of Panama is merely a shipping port for these hats brought from other places.

NOT WOVEN UNDER WATER.

Another illusion that prevails generally is that the natives weave these precious hats under water, but this is not the fact. The rumor probably started from the method of soaking the raw material in water prior to their being woven. There is nothing extraordinary about this, the object being merely to soften the "straw" so that it will be pliable and easy to handle.

To call the Panama a straw hat is, by the way, an anomaly, for it is not made of straw. The material used in its manufacture is either the stem of the palm leaves or a rare sort of grass that grows in South America. The natives are very deft in curing and weaving both of these products. The palm they tear in shreds with their teeth until it spreads out fan shape. After a long soaking the palm stem is taken out of the water and nailed on a rough-looking block at which the workman sits for weeks at a time carefully putting in place shred after shred. It is this length of time and tediousness in labor that accounts for the high price placed on Panama hats.

There is one distinction in Panamas of the utmost importance, a distinction that, if noticed, stamps the wearer as a real "swell" or on the other hand a pretender. Your genuine, high priced Panama is made in one piece and has no lining, while the inferior style of hat, made for the most part in Antioquia, Colombia, is woven in two pieces and has a lining. That style is regarded with contempt by the South Americans, though it oftentimes passes in the United States for the "real thing" and is priced accordingly.

The perfect Panamas are woven by the women of Ecuador, and those that live in the two provinces of Tolima and Sunda, Colombia. The men can rarely be induced to work, no matter how considerable the pay, and contractors have nearly ceased trying to galvanize them with energy.

The value of a hat depends entirely upon its texture and pliability. One that costs $500, for example, should be so closely woven as to appear practically smooth to the naked eye. It is, of course, made in one piece, and if the owner has not been cheated he should be able to squeeze his hat through a finger ring. But a hat capable of this treatment is about as rare as blue diamonds.

There is no telling where the Panama hat "craze" will end or the amount of money that will be spent thereon this season. The masculine population seem to have gone quite mad over it and dealers are taking advantage of the movement to reap a harvest. "In other years," said a Broadway hatter, "I would have sold several thousand stiff brimmed Mackinaws in the first part of the season, but this season I have sold less than a hundred. Only Panamas are wanted. Women, too, have caught the infection and you will find that before the summer is half over fashion will decree that to be up to date a woman must own a Panama hat."

ETNA STILL SLUMBERS

The height of Mount Etna, the famous volcano of Sicily, has long been fixed at 10,866 feet. Its height has recently been more accurately measured by trigonometrical processes and the exact elevation is found to be 10,775 feet. The difference is not important, but the more exact determination will, of course, be given on the maps hereafter published. The main crater has a width of 1,725 feet and a depth of 626 feet. Mount Etna has periods of almost complete quiescence. Six years had elapsed after the eruption of 1892, when in the autumn of 1898 blue flames began to emerge from the mouth of the largest crater and a great deal of vapor was emitted from the lesser orifices. It was then announced that Etna seemed to be preparing for an effusion of lava, probably on the south or southwest slopes. The expected eruption, however, did not begin until the morning of July 10, 1899, when great volumes of smoke and lava began to issue from the main crater, but after several days the activity gradually subsided and Etna soon resumed its peaceful aspect and has since seemed to be in a slumbering condition.—New York Sun.

OYSTERS CAUSED TYPHOID.

The eating of a lot of fresh water oysters by the sisters and pupils at Mount St. Agnes' college, at Mount Washington, nearly caused an epidemic of typhoid fever at the institution. Fifteen of the young lady pupils, four of the boys' department scholars and two sisters were stricken.

Oysters were served during the Lenten season and on two occasions fresh water bivalves were sent to the institution without the knowledge of the sisters. The second time there was some comment about the taste of the oysters and shortly after this several of the pupils were taken ill. Dr. William J. Todd was called in and found that the pupils were suffering with something like the grip, but the ailment soon developed into typhoid fever.

It is thought that the oysters contained the fever germs. It was also suggested that the water at the institution might have caused the disease, but the state and county health authorities made an investigation and found the supply in excellent condition and decided that the oysters caused the trouble.

All the patients are recovering and will soon be able to resume their studies.—Baltimore Sun.

PENNSYLVANIA'S CHARTER.

The original of the charter bearing the signature and seal of William Penn, granting "the rights and privileges of a commonwealth to the freemen of the state of Pennsylvania," is now one of the most valued documents in the collection of George C. Thomas, head of the Drexel banking house.

The document consists of two sheets of parchment, in a good state of preservation. It was purchased recently by Mr. Thomas from the estate of the late Dr. Edward Maris, who bought it eight years ago from Henry H. Almack in the little town of Fritchley, in Darby, England. Mr. Almack's father was engaged in transcribing the manuscripts of Sir Henry Fenn, and it was from this collection, said to be the largest in England, that the charter was probably obtained. Some time ago a bill was introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature providing for the purchase of the document from Dr. Maris for $15,000. It passed both houses, but was vetoed by Governor Hastings.

ARIZONA'S ICE CAVES

It is not likely that anywhere in the world does there exist an industry so unique as that just being put in operation in northern Arizona, where elaborate plans are being laid to utilise the product of the ice caves in existence there. Strange, it seems, too, that in this land of great heat, where in some places ice is a priceless luxury, made so by excessive freight rates which prevail in the territories, man's ingenuity has not heretofore conceived the idea of the wholesale appropriation of the relief which nature has provided, says the Los Angeles Herald.

Not until very recently has any attempt been made to take away the apparently inexhaustible quantities of ice which have been found in the caves near Flagstaff. Now, however, it is intended to literally mine or quarry the ice, and the promoters of the scheme declare it will prove a great profit producer from the very outset, as they expect to secure ice enough not only to supply the scores of smaller stations, towns and lumber camps in that vicinity, but to provide a supply for the railroads of northern Arizona and New Mexico, even into California, as in the vast region of what was once the northern part of the Great American desert ice factories have not as yet become common. Indeed, the factories at Los Angeles, Phoenix, Albuquerque and Las Vegas have for years supplied most of that district with ice, although at prices that necessarily were prohibitive, made so by the long railway haul.

The main or best known ice caves lie at the head of Clarkes valley, 17 miles southwest of Flagstaff. Although others may be larger they are not so accessible. A wagon road leads nearly to the cave, and the Arizona Lumber company's railroad at one time passed near, but its route has since been changed. The people of the country think the cave was what is termed a "blowout," that is, a volcano vent, made by water or gas during some convulsion of nature in the earlier history of our planet. There are many of these "blowouts" of various sizes and extent scattered over Arizona.

But comparatively few people visited the caves until recent years, when the tourists first began to learn of the great natural wonders of northern Arizona. But little, too, has been written which is at all authentic of the caves. The earliest mention that can be found of the caves is in the report of Lieutenant R. O. Hill, who headed an exploring expedition through northern Arizona and southern California, Utah and Colorado early in the '40's. He speaks of an "immensely deep fissure, where nature had stored many tons of ice. When we descended part way into the fissure," says Hill, "the change from terrific July heat was so quick and intense as to make many of us ill. Indeed, it was not less than a 60-degree drop in temperature which we encountered in perhaps twenty minutes of our descent."

The Hill party took along a supply of ice which lasted them for several days, a luxury, certainly, under the fierce beating of the sun on that then trackless desert.

Hill says that the Indians of the Navajo and Pueblo tribes knew of the ice caves, but never ventured near them, having fear of what was to them a supernatural creation.

Until last August the main cave had only been penetrated to a depth of 200 feet, and even that distance could only be reached by the possessors of small bodies. At that time E. B. Dalton, a young man from New York, succeeded in creeping and crawling through the narrow crevice at the 200-foot point, and over one hundred feet farther he found the cavity much larger than that near the surface. He found several small caves leading out of the large one, all in almost solid ice, and he believes that they lead far down into the earth.

For a quarter of a century no new houses have been built in the Sussex (England) village of Slindon, which is happier in the matter of poetic interpretation, inasmuch as when he hears the metallic syllables of the lawn mower scattered on the ambient air he fancies he is listening to the stridulous of the locust in the shimmering draperies of the wind-tossed snowball tree.—Judge.

TRAITS OF DICKENS

An Old Friend Gossips of the Famous English Novelist—New Book on Dickens.

The boy was taken to the office.

In November, 1851, Charles Dickens and his family went to live in Tavistock House, Tavistock square, where they remained until the year 1857. The very sound of the name is replete to me with memories of innumerable evenings passed in the most congenial and delightful intercourse; dinners, where the guests vied with each other in brilliant conversation, whether intellectual, witty or sparkling—evenings devoted to music or theatricals. First and foremost of that magic circle was the host himself, always "one of us," who invariably drew out what was best and most characteristic in others; who used the monosyllable "we" much more frequently than that of "I," and who made use of his superiority to charm and quicken the society around him, but never to crush or overpower it with a sense of their inferiority. The most diffident girl was encouraged to express her modest opinion to the great man, and in him the youngest child ever found a ready playfellow, writes Mary Boyle in her new book on Charles Dickens, published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

It was in the year 1857 that Charles Dickens took possession of the little house of Gad's hill, within a walk of Rochester. I thought the dwelling characteristic of the man, for it was situated on the high road, frequented by all sorts and conditions of men—the tramp and the vagrant in their tatters, the well dressed man and joyous holiday makers, emigrants traveling to the seacoast, military men changing quarters, pedestrians, equestrians. From the opposite garden of the wayside inn, which bore the traditional sign of the "Falstaff," came the sound of the bowling of skittles, with an old-fashioned ring in its merriment. The smooth lawn with its flowerbeds, the hayfields beyond and the beautiful woods of Cobham Park in the distance, represented to my fancy the tenderness of Charles Dickens' sentiment, and the freshness and the delicacy of his imagination.

Many were the summer days I passed under the roof of that little dwelling; many the hours I sat with Georgina Hogarth in the garden, or in one of the glades of a small wood which, in the sweet season, formed a charming resting place all hung with garlands of eglantine, with long strings of blue convolvulus, and the sweet-scented honeysuckle. These were the hours during which "Boz" was left to his work, in what I called his "lair," for few of us would have risked disturbing him when he had taken up his position for the morning's labor in the chalet, which his friend Fechter, the tragedian, had brought him from Paris. In the setting up of the said chalet, after the manner of a child's architectural toy, Charles had found the greatest amusement, for he was indeed one of those who find "A child's keen delight in little things," and the hanging of his pictures, the arranging of his furniture, the annexation of a tiny conservatory, and the construction of an underground tunnel, which connected the area round the house with a small plantation of lofty cedars, under the shade of which he erected his chalet, were all sources to him of intense interest.

In the afternoon he sought relaxation, and then the other inmates of the house came in for their shares of his enviable society, and the basket carriage was brought to the door, drawn by the "sober Newman Noggs," the harness adorned with musical bells, which his friend Mr. Lehmann had brought him from Norway, and we would take long drives all around this picturesque neighborhood. Sometimes we would alight at a distant point, to return home on foot; sometimes we would wend our way through green hop gardens on one side and golden cornfields on the other for a distance of many miles; yet we were never wearied. I remember once Georgina Hogarth and I had accompanied him to a new spot of interest which he had lately discovered. He walked at his usual swinging rate, and we had proudly kept up with him. Only five minutes had been allowed for refreshment, as he called it, otherwise rest, between reaching the goal and arriving at home. How pleased his fellow pedestrians were to receive the following tribute: "Well done—ten miles in two hours and a half." I sit in my armchair now, and look back on that feat as almost miraculous.

LOCUST OR LAWN MOWER.

The realist sits on the honeysuckled porch and is certain that he hears the strident, unvassoined rat-tat-tat of the lawn mower when his anything but ravished soul absorbs the ding-dong ping-pong medley of the locust. But the impressionist

MUCH NARROW GUAGE ROAD.

The Spanish Cortes has just approved the new railroad project under which it is proposed to construct about 3,100 miles of narrow-gauge railroad at a total cost of $50,000,000, the state guaranteeing 4 per cent. interest on the capital required.

USED GEMS FOR BULLETS.

Bullets made of precious stones are rarities in warfare. But during the fighting on the Kashmir frontier, when the British troops defeated the rebellious Hunzas, the natives used bullets of garnets encased in lead. The British preserved many as curiosities.

PEWS AT HIGH PRICES.

At an auction sale held Friday at Sloan's auction rooms two pews in St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, Lafayette square, were sold at big prices. Pew No. 52 brought $2,750, while pew No. 77 was sold for $1,600. While these prices may seem large, in reality they are not, for it is a rare thing for a pew in old St. John's, which is the ultra-fashionable church in Washington, to be had for "love or money." The church edifice being so small the pews have for years been most sought after, and they have been attainable only of recent years by auction. Then they are sold outright to the purchasers, and remain in a family until that family either dies out or moves away from the capital. Often pewholders with small families sell a seat in their pews for a certain number of years, and even a single seat brings prices way up in the hundreds of dollars. It has been several years since there was a chance to purchase a pew in St. John's. The last one sold—at auction, of course—was during the Cleveland administration. It brought a better price than the two sold Friday on account of its superior location. There is a waiting list of persons who desire pews or seats in St. John's which, if filled, would take up all the seatings in a new church almost twice the size of the present one. Some years ago a Baltimorean bought a pew in St. John's and gave it to the church with the distinct understanding that it was to be placed at the disposal of the president of the United States, and solely for the use of the president and his family. Presidents of late years, however, have rarely used this pew, for Mr. Cleveland attended the Presbyterian church, and so did Mr. Harrison. President McKinley was a Methodist and Mr. Roosevelt is a Dutch Reformer. Mrs. Roosevelt is an Episcopalian, and she, with the Roosevelt children, now occupies the president's pew almost every Sunday.—Baltimore American.

AUTOMOBILES FOR NAZARETH.

The birthplace of Jesus is recommended to the state department as a promising market for automobiles. The road between Nazareth and Haifa is traversed annually by hundreds of tourists, and Consul G. Bie Ravndal, at Beirut, says that autos could be put into service there to great advantage. The vehicles used now are heavy, two-seated affairs made in Buffalo, N. Y., but the heat is very trying to the horses which draw them and this is one reason why he thinks the power vehicles could be substituted to advantage.

All through Syria there have been inquiries for automobiles, but up to this time only a poor brand of French machine has been introduced. In Palestine there are few railroads, but other roads are being built rapidly, and it is believed they would be found well adapted to vehicles of this kind. There are 500 carriages in use in Beirut and many more in Lebanon and Palestine. Every year 1,500 tourists pass through Galilee, which number does not include pilgrims to the holy places. The latter would hardly be expected to patronize the horseless carriages.

ODD 'PHONE DECISION.

In Berlin a legal decision was recently rendered which is of interest to every business man in every country who uses a telephone.

A merchant one day sent an order by telephone to a business firm, and as the order was not carried out to his satisfaction he sued for damages, claiming that the person at the other end of the telephone to whom he had given his order was responsible for the loss.

The court, however, decided against him and refused to award any damages, on the ground that, as a rule, the person who goes first to a telephone and asks to be put in connection with another person must bear the consequences of any loss which may be the result of such a conversation.

IS ATLANTIS STORY TRUE?

SCIENTISTS FIND FACTS TO CONFIRM TRADITION OF A DISASTER THAT MAKES ST. PIERRE SEEM A TRIFLE.

The terrible disaster in the West Indies has naturally revived reminiscences of previous occurrences of the same kind in other parts of the world, and all the horrors of similar character which have occurred for ages past have been retold and compared with the latest and perhaps worst of all. It is a singular fact, however, that if there be aught of truth in the early traditions of mankind, there once occurred in the West Indian region, or in the Atlantic to the east of the West Indies, the most fearful disaster in the history of the human race, a catastrophe so terrible in its nature as to impress indelibly its story into the mind of the human race and render forgetfulness of it an impossibility.

It has been customary for ages to regard the story of Atlantis, the lost island, as merely a traditionary fable. Students are now more cautious and hesitate are pronouncing judgment upon a tradition which comes down through the ages with the stamp of undoubted antiquity upon it. The fact that the Atlantis legend has for over a thousand years been regarded as an idle tale has no influence in the minds of scholars who remember that for the same length of time the stories of Herodotus were equally discredited. He is now known to have been a conscientious narrator of what he saw or knew to be true. Many legends, once discredited like that of Atlantis, are now known to be founded upon fact, so students of antiquity are slowly coming to the conclusion that the Atlantis legend has a solid historical basis.

The tradition was in ancient times most clearly set forth by Plato, who, in "Timaeus," gives a full account of the storied island, the narrative being imparted to Solon, ancestor of Plato, by the priests of Egypt, who in their documents had preserved the history of Atlantis as it had been handed down from a still more remote antiquity. Briefly summarized, the account given by Plato and others is this:

To the west of the Pillars of Hercules or strait of Gibraltar, and at the distance of several hundred miles, there once lay a great island. Its dimensions were larger than those of Asia Minor, and, either by a short voyage by land or a chain of islands, it communicated with the great continent to the west of the ocean, or America. This island was of itself an empire. Its people attained a high degree of civilization. They had populous cities, carrying on a vast trade both by sea and land; they cultivated the earth, had orchards and vineyards, and their soil produced tropical fruits and flowers, delicacies of many kinds and medicinal plants and herbs. They dug great canals for purposes of irrigation and transportation, they constructed excellent highways, they had a system of laws and a highly organized government. The palace and royal city exceeded in splendor anything known in Europe at that time, the details being curiously suggestive of the descriptions of the royal palace of the Peruvian incas. They had extensive colonies. One swarm of their population settled Egypt, another the shores of the eastern Mediterranean, finally founding great states in the valleys of the Euphrates and Tigris. The shores of the Mediterranean, the coasts of western Europe and perhaps also portions of western Africa were under their control, and hints are given both by Plato and others of colonies elsewhere. Their country was the original seat of the world's civilization and from it the knowledge of the arts and sciences, and perhaps of letters and writing also, was carried in every direction to the ends of the earth.

By a tremendous convulsion of nature the continent disappeared beneath the waters of the ocean, its inhabitants perished, its cities were overthrown. The nature of the catastrophe is not exactly stated either by Plato or in the other legends, though vaguely the destructive agent is declared to be water in such immense quantities as to constitute a deluge which reached to the tops of the highest mountains. "The fountains of the great deep were broken up," rain of unprecedented violence continued many days and the flood covered all the earth. A few frightened inhabitants escaped in ships and bore the news of this awful calamity to the rest of the world. In their attempts to explain an occurrence which filled all nations with horror, men attributed it to the vengeance of their gods, and found a reason in the real or supposed wickedness of the people of Atlantis, which provoked their deities to destroy them.

Such is the story, as derived from Plato and one or two other ancient sources, of the mysterious island. It is now practically certain that long before the date commonly fixed as that of the flood there were powerful civilized states both in Egypt, Mesopotamia and along the eastern Mediterranean. They possessed in a high degree the arts of civilization. They could write; they had libraries and public records. There were banks and commercial houses; accounts were kept and bills rendered. There were poets and novelists, architects, painters and sculptors. Their civilization, rather than original, however, seems to have been derived from an older source, and the suspicion that this was the case has led students of antiquity more than ever to the belief that there may be much of truth in the hypothesis which makes Atlantis the original seat of all civilization, but the destruction of the great continent did not hinder or delay the progress of man, for the colonies sent forth were strong enough to continue the work begun by the mother country. Traditions of the deluge are not, as commonly supposed, to be found in every land. There are none among the African tribes of the Dark Continent; there are none among the Australian aborigines or South sea islanders. The traditions exist only in those countries which are also traditionally associated with the lost continent, or whose inhabitants are descended from its supposed colonists. They are found in Europe, in all parts of Asia, in Egypt, in North, Central and South America, and tradition asserts that all these countries were either settled from Atlantis or had been conquered by the powerful and warlike Atlantean kings. The total destruction of the mother country would so vividly impress the imagination of all nations associated with the lost continent that the deluge might easily be magnified into the inundation of the whole earth, and no traditions are to be found among the Africans or in the South seas, because these peoples had nothing to do with Atlantis; had never heard of it, nor of the catastrophe by which it vanished.

The historic evidence in favor of the existence of the lost island is merely traditional, but the universality of the tradition and its persistence give it a weight which can not be ignored. The narrative of Plato is no fanciful story of gods and heroes; it is a plain, straightforward statement of facts connected with a remarkable people, whose history had been derived directly from the descendants of its original colonists, and the Plato narrative carries conviction by its simple manner and apparent lack of imagination.

Only in the last few years has science come to the confirmation of tradition and rendered it almost certain that at one time far back in the misty past there was actually an island of continental proportions in the Atlantic ocean. About fifty years ago the scientific investigation of the sea bottom began with the invention of apparatus for making deep sea soundings. Government ships of the United States, Germany and Great Britain have mapped out the bottom of the Atlantic, and thus has been made known the existence of a vast submarine plateau reaching from a point in the sea to the west of the British islands in a southwestern direction to the coast of South America, with a connecting ridge near the center of the Atlantic on to the south. Another ridge passes off in the direction of Ireland. Thus the Atlantic consists of two very deep valleys, with a great plateau between them, the valleys having a depth of from 2,000 to 6,000 fathoms and the plateau of from 300 to 1,600. The Azores and a few other islands are the mountain peaks of this submarine plateau, but they are not the only peaks, for in numerous places the tops of submarine mountains rise within four or five hundred feet of the surface, and in a few instances these mountain summits have been located as isolated rocks, very dangerous to navigation.

The plateau has mountain ranges, and many evidences have been found of volcanic agency, still active in some of the islands which remain, and indicated as once present by the character of the specimens drawn from the sea bottom. Of course, it is impossible with present appliances to gain special information concerning the plateau or to ascertain aught of any ruins, if there are any, which may exist at the bottom, but it is altogether probable that at some period in the far distant past there was a great subsidence of the sea bottom, accompanied in all probability by an upheaval of the coasts, both of Europe and America. It is known that the British islands were once far below the level of the sea, probably to the depth of 1,500 or 1,700 feet, and an upheaval in one quarter signifies corresponding subsidence in another, so out of the cataclysm which destroyed Atlantis may have come a considerable part of the European and American continents.

Confirmatory evidence that land communication once existed between the Old World and the New is furnished by both botanists and zoologists, for the flora and fauna of the two, while not identical, still display so many instances of correspondence as to show that free communication existed. The fossil remains of the camel are found on both continents, the terrible European cave bear was no other than the grizzly; the glutton and the wolverine are identical, the cave lion and the cave wolf of Europe are found in their remains in America; while scores of other instances that might be cited, point to only one conclusion. The same correspondences are observed in the plant world both among species supposed to be native and varieties which have been cultivated from prehistoric times.

The only remaining question concerns the force or forces necessary to accomplish so tremendous a result. Is there a power in nature sufficient to submerge and destroy a continent? Concerning this no one who has read the story of Martinique can doubt. The earthquake, the volcanic eruption can destroy anything. Instances of the submergence of considerable districts have occurred in our own times. In 1819, 2,000 square miles of land at the mouth of the Indus sunk beneath the ocean and the towers of the great fort of Sindree are still visible miles from the present coast. The earthquake which destroyed Lisbon shook an area of the earth's surface larger than Europe. There was once a great continent connecting South Eastern Asia with Australia; it has vanished beneath the Pacific and the islands which dot the ocean are the tops of its mountains. Under the Atlantic there was a sudden displacement and subsidence of the crust of the earth, probably accompanied by violent volcanic disturbances, the sea rushed over the land. Atlantis disappeared and the few of its people who escaped spread far and near the awful story of the deluge and perhaps became the Noahs of the different nations which date their origin from the colonies of the lost island.

"A MAID OF THE WILDWOOD"

SECOND EDITION OF JUDGE LOUTTIT'S STORY.

The Volume Much Improved in Appearance—A Story of Events on the Old Frontier.

A second edition of Hon. George W. Louttit's historical novel, "A Maid of the Wildwood," has just come from the press. The book was first issued about the holidays, but owing to some haste of the publishers to get the story out for the holiday trade the mechanical execution of the work was not all either author or publishers desired. The edition just issued is in many respects a vast improvement over the first. A beautifully designed and illuminated cover title adds greatly to the fine appearance of the volume, which is printed and bound in the best style of modern book-making.

Judge Louttit's story has been alluded to heretofore in these columns, but it will not be amiss to renew attention to the tale. The scene of most of the incidents of the story is laid in that part of the northwestern territory that now comprises the states of Indiana and Ohio. The time of the opening of the story is in the early part of the last century. An Indian attack on the cabin of a settler results in the death of the father and the capture, after a heroic defense by the wife and mother, of herself and two children, a son and daughter of tender years. The son, who as Tamany, becomes the hero of the story, is taken by a war chief, Mershawa, and adopted by him as his son and a member of the tribe Mesahawa has a daughter, Naomi, a beautiful Indian girl. Naomi is "The Maid of the Wildwood" and the heroine. Tamany falls in love with her and it may well be said at this point that they finally are married, as is to be expected, but not until after many tribulations have beset them, for the course of true love ran no smoother on the frontier than in the centers of civilization. The fickleness of Tamany and the intrigues of a designing woman, known as Miss Owen, but as a matter of fact the wife of John Henry, a British spy, are in the main the cause of the lovers' troubles of Tamany and Naomi. But it all come out well in the end.

The story abounds in many thrilling situations, common to frontier life of the time and numerous historical figures pass upon the stage of the romance, chief among them being General William Henry Harrison and Tecumseh, the mightiest war-chief and statesman of the western aborigines. The great conspiracy of Tecumseh for a coalition of the tribes against the government, its fighting and its final failure, together with the death of Tecumseh form a climax of action, though leading up to that are General Harrison's dealings with the Indians, the battle of Tippecanoe and the overwhelming defeat of The Profit and his warriors near Lafayette. Fort Wayne figures incidentally in the tale. Several times the scene of the story shifts to Washington, where President Madison and his wife, the famous Dolly Madison, of this government's early history, become salient characters. Tamany and Naomi, who both are taken to the capital, gain the friendship and favor of the mistress of the presidential mansion, and it is largely through her efforts brought to an understanding that ensues in their marriage. The last important incidents of the story are enacted in Washington at the time of the invasion by the British during the war of 1812, and describes the taking of the national capital, the burning of the public buildings and the flight of the president. After that the incidents are peaceful and all events are happy for everybody.

"A Maid of the Wildwood" is a story that is well constructed, the plot is elaborate, but not complicated, the incidents are largely historical and related with fidelity to history and the characters are well drawn. Perhaps the closing incidents are prolonged rather needlessly, but they have historical bearing and value. Judge Louttit has written an interesting tale that compares favorably with other stories of the kind. (A Maid of the Wildwood," Colonial Publishing company, Fort Wayne, Ind. Price $1.00.)

IN NORTHERN INDIANA.

The flouring mill at Garrett, recently burned, is being rebuilt.

Mrs. Mildred L. Deir, 78 years of age, is dead at her home near Bluffton.

It cost a Kokomo man $14 in fine and costs to swear over the telephone.

North Manchester is making a strenuous effort to revive its old county fair.

The Kendallville fair will introduce a baby show as one of its attractions in September.

The Northern Indiana Baptist association will meet at Hammond next year. J. M. Riese, of Mishawaka, is president.

Bluffton is to have a lodge of Elks, application having been made for a charter by fifty persons who are desirous of joining the order in that city.

J. W. Crumpacker, cashier of a Laporte bank, has kept a weather record and says we have a wet season every eleventh year. This year is one of them.

While attempting to hive bees which were swarming, Mrs. John King was stung so extensively that her condition is now serious. Blood poisoning is feared.

The south end of Adams county is being terrorized by a seemingly organized gang of thieves, who not only enter farm houses, but break into city residences.

Franklin Galloway, who enlisted in the army in September, 1901, from Adams county, and deserted two months later, was arrested Friday at a brickyard near Huntington, where he was at work.

Mrs. Charles Houck, of Huntington discovered two masked burglars attempting to force an entrance into her home, and she promptly feared away at them with a revolver. The fellows fled.

William Fortune, Allen A. Wilkinson and Josiah K. Lilley, of Indianapolis, are the incorporators of a pleasure company called the Wawasee company, which will have its office at Wawasee, Kosciusko county. The object is to build houseboats on Lake Wawasee and the capital stock is $30,000.

Near Fountain City, Wednesday, at midnight, persons as yet unknown fired through the smoking car of the northbound passenger train on the Grand Rapids and Indiana, narrowly missing several persons. The officials of the road were notified, and it is said that the company now has detectives looking into the matter.

An organized effort is being made to drive saloons out of Bluffton. Remonstrances are being circulated for the signature of voters in every ward of the city, delegating power of attorney to N. K. Todd and Frank Gordon, authorizing them to sign remonstrances against any person who may apply for liquor license.

A fight at Vera Cruz between Miss Alice Huffman and Mrs. George Weist is the talk of the village and the friends of each are doing a good job of talking. The trouble all started because Mrs. Weist asserted that a Children's day exercise at the Reformed church didn't amount to much and was a mighty poor excuse for an entertainment.

The Misses Mary Tigar, Louise Pellens, Grace Wilding, Helen Hackett, Donna Taylor, Lois Field and Hester Bash are guests of Miss Alice Worden at Winona.

NEWSBOYS' BAND CONCERT NEXT WEDNESDAY.

THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS NEWSBOYS BAND IN STREET PARADE.

The performance of the Indianapolis News' Newsboys' Band, which will be given in this city at the Masonic Temple Wednesday evening, June 25, for the benefit of the union Newsboys, is marvellous for musicians so young in years.

Prof. J. B. Vandaworker, with the Newsboys' band, is a thorough musician and wields the baton with graceful skill. His influence over the young musicians is magnetic. The band plays with a vim and swing attained only by the most famous organizations under the best conductors.

The Newsboys' Band, besides the vaudeville company, will furnish a entertainment which will be alone worth the price of admission. They will give a great number of the popular selections which they play with the dramatic precision and attack of old musicians, perfect in ensemble.

Each member of the famous Band is under the personal instruction of Prof. J. B. Vandaworker, a noted bandmaster. This band has never failed to please its audience.

FOUR-FOOTED CRIMINALS

Lombroso Investigates the Habits of Malefactors of Animal Land.

Not content with his incomparable explorations in the dark dominions of human criminality, Cesesre Lombroso, the world's oracle on all that attaches to the hard way of the transgressor, has latterly penetrated the secrets of funny four-footed malefactors, thereby developing facts of much suggestiveness and offering fresh testimony of the intrinsic fraternity of genus homo with various other animal races.

Not humankind alone, with its pitiful abnormalities, branded with the insignia of rectitude, it appears, has its contingent of black sheep, with variously differentiated stages of inkiness, from the grossly degenerate cannibal or brutish inebriate, through the whole gamut of unbridled passions centering round love, jealousy or revenge, theft and conspiracy, in evil doing.

While it might be perilous to accuracy to press the comparison, it is interestingly evident that earth's four-footed tribes are guilty of lapses from rectitude curiously similar to those of the renegades which people human prisons.

Despite its lack of heathen missions, animal land has its cannibals, who relish less tenderly nurtured flesh than that of the fair-skinned missionaries who garnish the dinner tables of South Sea Islanders. Although but sparsely supplied with grog shops, it is not without its inebriates. Although utterly wanting in such valuables as are sought after by the modern burglar, it has its bands of depredators, whose exploits for picturesqueness distance those of Robin Hood, Rob Roy or any other hero of outlawry, and for audacity vie with the adventures of the Chicago hold-up man. Although unriched by no poets to chronicle their passion, it is equipped with Romeos and Juliets, whose affairs afford a humanlike source of belligerencies without end. Finally, through the cunning talents of its more intelligent members, it can boast of conspiracy for unrighteousness.

APES LEAD IN REFORMS.

What a naughty, naughty world animaldom is proved to be! Blessings on the head of its pioneer reformers, noble apes who have advanced to a civilization which appreciates the value of a bar of justice and has learned to inflict penalties upon the blackguard citizens of their communities.

The type of physique peculiar to a chronic animal evildoer is generally recognized, as with the human scoundrel, by the shape of the skull. Arabian horse breeders recognize the outward and visible signs of interior iniquity and refuse to admit horses evincing them into their studs. The scapegrace horse forgets kindnesses and remembers injuries, is unconquerably willful, rears and kicks. The elephant rogue is held in fear by his comrades, who oblige him because of his wickedness to live aloof.

In the matter of cannibalism wolves perhaps take the lead. When at a loss for their next meal they fall upon the weakest member of the pack and devour him without a thought. Dogs are not prone to this sin, unless pressed by force of circumstances. In the arctic regions if famished they eat the bodies of their dead brethren, mothers being willing to partake of their little ones under the same conditions. The same is true of bears and rats. Tiny crocodiles often go the way of the arctic dogs, while rabbits apparently devour one another without a thought as to the plenty surrounding them. Serpents are good cannibals and are frequently known to feast upon their bosom companions or mates. Matricide, parricide, infanticide and fratricide are features of animal cannibalism.

VICTIMS OF INTOXICATION.

Tipplers among animals are not rare. Abyssinian goats find the counterparts of bacchanalian feasts in the coffee bean, fighting furiously when under its influence. Cows are intoxicated and maddened by hempseed and opium, while bee topers find solace in the deliciously overpowering aroma of the flowers whose sweets they seek. Ants have been chloroformed and thus completely paralyzed, with the exception of their tongues. Dogs and horses have been known to acquire a confirmed taste for alcoholic liquors, while all domestic animals become ferocious if fed habitually on flesh diet.

Affairs of the heart are a fertile inspiration for feuds, which give rise to frequent assaults and batteries or duels to the death. From the tiger to the dove, every animal when under the spell of the tender flame is ready to commit limitless excesses. The seal on his rock-bound habitation, with fifty or sixty battles with rivals ere he can install himself in his home with his brides, has a typical experience. When finally established in peace he often shows an eye gouged out, his flippers and blubber rent to shreds and bloody gashes from tip to toe.

FIGHT BECAUSE OF HATRED.

Personal antipathies for inexplicable reasons as rule among men cause lifelong unfairness and violence. This is particularly true of horses, dogs and monkeys, who will fight to the death those of their fellows for whom they have conceived some unaccountable dislike.

Of the countless instances of the display of revengeful passions the elephant is a familiar illustration. The classic tailor who pricked the elephant in the nose and was showered with water from the vast beast's convenient hose is one of many who have suffered that retribution. The dromedary, generally a pattern of meekness, if teased beyond endurance by its drivers, flies into a fury and compels them to escape for their lives ere he strips them of their clothing and tears and tramples them to pieces.

In matters of self-control weather plays no inconspicuous part. Wild creatures are rendered the fiercer by unusual heat, and all animals under its influence more easily fly into a passion. Novelties in the way of objects or sounds often drive them beside themselves. This is suggestive of similar conditions among savage peoples. A train sends a cow into convulsions of fear or rage if she is unaccustomed to the sight. An engine or any unwonted object drives horses and cattle into fright. It is the same with sounds to which they are not habituated. The monkey that dresses himself in a garb of paint is greeted by his bosom chums with suspicion and hostility.

ROB KNOWING THEIR KIN.

Some of the robbers held of animaldom, such as the fox and the rat, are only too unwelcomely familiar in the world of men. In Africa the monkeys sally forth in joyous, stealthy stealing expeditions under the leadership of their head, which guides them warily to the cornfields, and there, as they load their capacious cheeks and stomachs and limbs, from time to time survey the landscape o'er to watch out for detectives on their trail. Bees sometimes, to spare themselves the exertion of labor, go out en masse from a colony, attack a well furnished hive, assault its sentries and inmates, and ransack the hive and bear off the booty. After repeated ventures they acquire a predilection for predatory life and resort thereto as their sole means of gaining a livelihood.

Of animal conspirators an incident given by Lombroso is an effective instance. A little dog which had suffered maltreatment at the hands of a bull-dog made a banquet for all the other dogs of the neighborhood, gathered the bones therefor days ahead. Immediately upon the conclusion of the regalement it led out its guests to revenge itself on its foe. Three sinful beavers dwelt together by a stream, where they had just built themselves a house. Nearby lived a beaver recluse, which they visited and invited to their house. When it came they received it inside, fell to and slew it.

LYNCH LAW METHODS IN VOGUE.

Retribution and justice, in Lombroso's opinion, as it is evinced among four-footed judges, is a duplicate of the lynch laws in operation among half civilized human communities, and the fierce death penalties employed by the savage tribes upon the most trivial lapse from virtue. Far livelier and harsher are animal halls of justice than those pictured on canvas as inspired by the delicate fancies of a Sir Edwin Landseer. Their laws, like those of Solon and Dracon, are chronicled in blood. If the leader of a colony of monkeys fails in the discharge of the duties devolving upon its office they put it instantly to death, and deal in the same ruthless way with any one of their number which refuses to swear allegiance to the leader.

It is said that storks hold tribunals over the misdeeds of one who abuses another, steals away some one's wife, or similar misdemeanors.

MEDICINAL VEGETABLES.

We know that the fruits and vegetables raised by artificial heat and moisture must be deficient in some of the elements which nature alone can furnish; and while often more attractive, they are of but little value aside from pleasing the eye. In May, in the Central and Northern states we have the first homegrown vegetables; in looking up the composition of some of them, we are surprised to find they contain some of the ingredients of the so-called spring tonics, and although the real nutritive value may be small, on account of these properties they are healthful and serve to tempt the appetite.—Good Housekeeping.

Asparagus is one of the earliest delicacies, and when young and tender is very digestible. The lower part should not be put on the table; it should be prepared by breaking the stalks, and the tough part which will not snap easily should be discarded. The most popular way of serving this vegetable is with a drawn butter or white sauce and served on toast.

Spinach, cowslip and dandelion greens contain potash salts. As Emerson says, "There is a right way to do everything, even to the boiling of an egg" so even in the cooking of greens, there is a right way, so that none of the delicate flavors be lost. The water should be freshly boiled, the greens added and kept boiling and the salt added at the last.

MME. LOUBET, WIFE OF THE FRENCH PRESIDENT.

While President Loubet of France was being feted and entertained in Russia by the czar Mme. Loubet remained at home. She is very domestic in her tastes, and it is understood that her distaste for all public functions led her to decline to accompany her distinguished husband on his St. Petersburg trip.

BIRDS CARRY THE MAILS.

The military authorities of Germany have been greatly encouraged of late by the excellent results of experiments with pigeons as letter-carriers. The suggestion first came to them during the siege of Paris, and since then they have devoted much attention to the care and development of the "carrier" or homing pigeon. All owners of homing pigeons are compelled by law to put their birds at the government's disposal in time of war.

Military pigeon post stations are maintained at Strassburg, Mayence, Cologne, Kiel and other fortresses. At Spandau a new one has just been established, which is to be the headquarters or general postoffice for the whole service. Each floor of the large four-story building contains hundreds of dovecotes and the southern front is inclosed by an immense netting, in which the birds may take air and exercise.

There is also a photographic establishment, for micro-photography is impressed into the pigeon post service. A message of several pages is photographed on a bit of thin collodion film as big as a nickel, which is slipped into a quill and tied to a tail feather of the messenger.

SPRING FEVER.

Spring fever is another name for biliousness. It is more serious than most people think. A torpid liver and inactive bowels mean a poisoned system. If neglected, serious illness may follow such symptoms. DeWitt's Little Early Risers remove all danger by stimulating the liver, opening the bowels and cleansing the system of impurities. Safe pills. Never gripe. "I have taken DeWitt's Little Early Risers for torpid liver every spring for years," writes R. M. Everly, Moundsville, W. Va. "They do me more good than anything I have ever tried." Meyer Bros. & Co

Congreve would prepare a drama for the stage in a week or ten days, though four or five times this period was spent in revision.

FILTHY TEMPLES IN INDIA.

Sacred cows often defile Indian temples, but worse yet is a body that's polluted by constipation. Don't permit it. Cleanse your system with Dr. King's New Life Pills and avoid untold misery. They give lively livers, active bowels, good digestion, fine appetite. Only 25c at Dreier & Bro.'s drug store.

During the last ten years more than 250,000 lost and starving dogs have been cared for at the home in Battersea, England.

During the summer kidney irregularities are often caused by excessive drinking or being overheated. Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure. Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pallens & Polster.

The present status of the work of medical missions is such as to encourage the prosecution of this form of evangelism.

Brookline (Mass.) authorities are treating their pools with crude petroleum to kill mosquitoes and prevent the spread of malaria.

TOO MUCH MEAT EATING.

If the action of the wholesale slaughterers of meat would raise the price to $1 a pound the effect would be to convince the hard-headed public that meat is not a necessity of life. That, says Victor Smith in the New York Press, would be an end gained. The way to keep the price of meat within reasonable limits is for the public to quit buying it. Let us all try it for two weeks. We consume in 14 days over 500,000,000 pounds of meat, which we do not require as a physiological necessity. Peas, beans, potatoes, cabbage, onions, corn, whole-wheat bread, corn bread, some fruits and plenty of water are all we need. No one likes meat more than I do, but last year I did without it for eight months, and after the first week or two did not yearn for it. Result—better general health.

If we should do a little more high thinking and less high living we should learn that the actual necessaries of life are water, air, coal or wood, clothing and "sumpn teat." If deprived of water, air and "sumpn teat" we should die; if of coal or wood and clothing we should suffer. Air is of the highest importance, water next, then food. But of food there are so many different kinds that a corner would be an utter impossibility if people would only quit getting panicky in their demands for any certain staple that becomes by manipulation, scarce and high-priced. When meat is cornered let us eat vegetables, and e converso. When wheat is cornered let us eat corn, etc. We would lynch any man or corporation attempting to corner air or water.

INDIANS OF WELSH ORIGIN.

Of late there has been considerable interest manifested in Great Britain relative to the Welsh settlers in the United States. The matter, however, lacks the great interest caused in the eighteenth century by the statement that a tribe of Welsh Indians had been discovered. In the seventeenth century John Josselyn, in his "Voyages to New England," mentioned that the customs of the inhabitants resembled those of ancient Britons, and Sir Thomas Herbert, another traveler of the same date, in his "Travels," gave Welsh words in use among these Indians.

A century later reports from several travelers and others were received of an Indian tribe that possessed manuscript, spoke Welsh and retained ceremonies of Christian worship. Among other information then published was the report of Captain Abraham Chaplain, of Kentucky, that his garrison near the Missouri had been visited by Indians who conversed in Welsh with some Welshmen in his company. These Indians were thought to be descendants of a colony said to have been formed by Madoc, son of Owen Gwynedd, on his discovery of America in 1170.

RECREATION FOR SOLDIERS.

The military authorities in France are beginning to realize that much remains to be done in the matter of providing men serving under the colors with healthy recreation. As a matter of fact, in almost every regiment at the present time soldiers have little choice to make as to how to spend their spare time. They can either stay in barracks and be called upon for extra fatigue duties or go out to wander aimlessly about the streets of the garrison town or spend three or four hours in the taverns. General Andre, minister of war, has now sent a circular letter to the generals commanding the twenty army corps asking them to consider the question of the organization of recreation and reading rooms in barracks in order to provide the men with a "moralizing atmosphere." Private initiative had already taken a step in this direction and had provided a certain number of games of draughts, chess, etc., together with outdoor games, for the use of soldiers in barracks, and in one or two towns "Soldiers' clubs" have been opened. Now that the authorities are taking the matter in hand much good may be effected in this direction.—Paris Daily Messenger.

IF YOU HAVE RHEUMATISM.

The latest computation of the number of distinctly rheumatism cures puts it at 1,437. It is one of the peculiarities of rheumatism that the cures prescribed for it are more numerous even than the varities of the ailment itself.

A brief enumeration of remedies includes horse chestnuts, wintergreen tablets, electric rings, magnetic watch charms, red flannel bandages—white flannel is considered of no efficacy—goats' milk, calisaya, horsehair poultices, raw onions carried in coat pockets and ice cream soda.

These are only a few of the best known remedies and do not include several which owe their fame to combinations of sundry ingredients. One old-fashioned cure is made up of a pint of old ale and a small measure of grated horseradish, put in a jar or demijohn and allowed to stand over night, after which a glass is drunk before each meal.

In favor of many of the established whimsical rheumatism remedies it is to be said that they are usually palatable, can be bought cheaply and are generally harmless, recalling in this particular the case of the patient for whom rock-and-rye was prescribed, and who declared that it did him great benefit—even with the rock candy left out.

Rheumatism appears in so many forms, it afflicts so many persons, it is so readily connected with weather conditions and the knowledge of its causes is so indefinite and on some points so much disputed that the provocation to give remedies for rheumatism is readily understood, though this fact does not moderate the general conviction of acute sufferers from rheumatism that the remedies so freely offered them constitute an aggravation of the disease.

GERMANY AND TRUSTS.

Consul W. Schumann, of Mainz, March 25, 1902, informs the state department that the Prussian government has lately taken steps to investigate the trusts and syndicates located in the kingdom, and a circular has been sent to the presidents of the various gubernatorial districts asking the names and memberships of trusts located in the several districts, the nature and value of the production, the reasons for forming the trusts, their objects, the regulation of price and output and division of spheres of operation, their statutes; what agreements have been made with other trusts; what effect their formation has had on other trusts and industries, on the cost of production and on prices; how the sale is regulated; how export prices compare with those asked in the home markets; if export premiums are granted; if the dividends, value of stock, etc., of the various companies forming the trusts have increased or not; what methods are employed to fight the competition of concerns outside of the trusts; what contracts are made with customers; the influence of the trusts on wages of workmen and on trade unions.—Philadelphia Times.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson for Sunday, June 22, 1902.
Topic—Temperance Lesson.
Text—Romans xiii., 8-14.

THE LESSON ILLUSTRATED.

(Prof. Forrest E. Dager, D. D., in the Sunday School Evangel.)

Do not limit the first expression of the lesson to money indebtedness. We are apt to apply it merely to our dealings with one another in dollars and cents; but does it not apply to all our social relations? I heard one young woman say to another, "I owe her a good setting down," by which she meant that she intended to pay a debt of malice or evil by giving the person named a tongue whipping. In passing along the street I met a group of boys in animated discussion. One excitedly said, "I owe him the hardest pounding any fellow in this town ever got."

When you see a person pull out of his pocket a handful of lottery tickets and pawnbroker's checks, you begin to look upon him as a questionable character. So when you find a person whose mind and heart seem to be filled with bills of malice, envy and hatred, you may rest assured that that person has been trading with the devil. Try to show the children the evil involved in the familiar expression, "I'll pay you up for that," and apply the principle of the golden rule.

Considering how love meets the requirements of the law, I recall two ladies who were sitting near me in the car discussing the relative merits of their servants. One of them said, "I have a young nurse girl who is very tidy and faithful and obedient to my wishes, but she has no liking for children whatever." The other said, "My nurse girl has a number of faults. She is not nearly so tidy or thoughtful as I would like her to be, but she loves little Edith as dearly as a sister could, and I always feel that my child is as safe with her as with me." Read the thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians, and it will become evident how and why love fulfills the law.

Emphasize the thought suggested by verse ten that a man without love to God and his fellowmen is constantly working "ill to his neighbors," even when he is not conscious of so doing. The cares of Zedekiah and his sons aptly illustrate the evil entailed upon others by a godless life. The last scene upon which Zedekiah's eyes rested on earth was the bloody death of his sons—slain on account of his transgressions. Parents sometimes come to me and say, "I wish that you could do something for my boy; he is going astray." I am often constrained to say: "I can do nothing for your boy unless you first let the Lord do something for you. The immediate cause of your boy's waywardness is your own indifference and neglect of God's cause."

Without entering into any discussion as to the exact meaning of verse eleven, show how many opportunities and joys we miss through mental and spiritual sleep. I recall one morning in my boyhood's days, when I especially desired to go on a hunting trip with my father. I was called at six o'clock and again at seven, but each time allowed sleep to overcome, taking it for granted that my mother would surely call again before the time to start. Great was my surprise and sorrow when I opened my eyes to see the sun shining brightly in my window and to hear that father had gone an hour before. We presume too much upon the long-suffering of God.

Verse thirteen will be found suggestive to those who desire to apply this lesson to the evils of strong drink. All of the sins there mentioned are found in company with rum. An excellent line of thought would be a description of the associations of strong drink.

A lecturer in Philadelphia was returning from the Academy of Music in company with the chairman of the meeting, when they passed a five-story building lighted to the top. "What is that lower story?" said the lecturer. "It has windows that evidently cost hundreds of dollars each." "That is a saloon that represents the elite of our best society who would never go into a dive." "What is the first story above?" "Gambling hell." "What is the next story?" "Gambling hell." "What is the upper story?" "You had better not ask."

In carrying out the spirit of verse fourteen, we must remember that we are not to put on Jesus Christ as we would put on a Sunday coat just for a short season. A mother said to her boy: "John, when you are in company tonight, be sure and put on your company manners. Don't act as you do when you are at home." Too many people have two codes of morals—one for home life and the other for special religious occasions.

A Medicine for Old People.

Rev. Geo. Gay, Greenwich, Kas., is past 83 years of age, yet he says: "I am enjoying excellent health for a man of my age, due entirely to the rejuvenating influence of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It brings sleep and rest when nothing else will, and gives strength and vitality even to one of my old age."

"I am an old soldier," writes Mr. Geo. Watson, of Newton, Ia., "and I have been a great sufferer from nervousness, vertigo and spinal trouble. Have spent considerable money for medicine and doctors, but with little benefit. I was so bad my mind showed signs of weakness. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I know it saved my life."

"One Minute Cough Cure beats all other medicines I ever tried for coughs, colds, croup and throat and lung troubles," says D. Scott Currin, of Loganton, Pa. One Minute Cough Cure is the only absolutely safe cough remedy which acts immediately. Mothers everywhere testify to the good it has done their little ones. Croup is so sudden in its attacks that the doctor often arrives too late. It yields at once to One Minute Cough Cure. Pleasant to take. Children like it. Sure cure for grip, bronchitis, coughs. I cheerfully recommend Kodol." Don't try to cure stomach trouble by dieting. That only further weakens the system. You need wholesome, strengthening food. MAJOR CROFOOT, G. P.

DUNNED FOR $4, HE OFFERS THE COLLECTOR A POSITION.

The Major Unfortunately Forgets His Checkbook—The Excuse Does Not Go, However, and the Bill Is Collected by Force.

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

MAJOR CROFOOT, grand promoter and general originator, had reached his office and hunted up a cigar stub left over from the day before and just settled down to enjoy it when his door was banged open and a stranger entered. The stranger was a man of liberal build and aggressive look, and he sat down on a chair without invitation, took a paper from his pocket and bluntly remarked:

"Here's a bill of $4 against you for laundry work, and I want the cash p. d. q."

The major was taken by surprise, and for a minute the room whirled round with him, but only for a minute. Then he rallied, worked up a beautiful smile and arose, with outstretched hand, to exclaim:

"What a coincidence! What a coincidence! Upon my word, but it is one of three or four trifles that had slipped my mind, and I am glad you came in. Have a cigar?"

"I will," replied the collector.

The major felt in his pockets and looked around on the floor at his feet, but found no cigar to offer. This fact didn't put him out, however, and he rubbed his hands and smilingly continued:

"Yes; I'm glad you called, because I want to send word to the estimable woman who runs the laundry that I had carelessly forgotten the little account and am sorry if she has been put to any worry. I wonder where my checkbook is?"

"You haven't got any," replied the collector in tones so blunt that another man's feelings might have been hurt.

"I may possibly have left it home. If so, I shall have to ask you to wait un til I can fetch it. Yes; I think I did leave it. It was my night for giving my landlady a check, you know."

"SHELL OUT OR TAKE A LICKING."

"You are lying to me!"

"My dear man, I trust that I misunderstand your words—I trust I do. This is, as I understand it, a meeting between gentlemen. You have called to collect a trifling account. I stand ready to pay the same. I see no need of acrimony."

"Oh, there is no acrimony," replied the man. "You're simply got to pay this bill before I leave here. I know you for a smooth tongued bilk, and none of your soft speeches will go down. When you are ready to haul out the cash, hand it over."

The major had put on his hat to leave the office. He removed it, sat down, and, working up the same old bland smile, he leaned forward and said:

"Another curious coincidence. I was just wondering where I could find a man like you. Let me tell you something on the quiet. My latest thing in corners—and I have made fifteen of them in the last two years—is to get hold up the entire horseradish crop of the year. This includes Europe as well as America. Yes, sir. I've got the thing dead to rights, and about a month from now there'll be the greatest hullabaloo you ever heard of. Horseradish is used for thirteen different purposes, as you may have heard, and nothing can take the place of it. The world has got to have horseradish or go out of business. You can buy a pound of it now for 20 cents, but as soon as the squeeze takes place the price jumps to 40 and stays right there. That's a clear profit of 45 cents on every pound, and the number of pounds used annually is 33,000,000. Just do a little figuring, will you?"

"I'm figuring," grimly replied the man.

"It will be a trust, of course," resumed the major, "the most soulless sort of a trust, and we may expect a howl from the public. We shall not be swerved by howls, however. Sixty cents a pound or no horseradish. We want an aggressive, determined man for manager, one who will face criticism and stand to his guns. You are the man for us, and you may consider yourself engaged from this morning. Your duties will not be onerous, and as to salary"—

"I couldn't take it."

"And as to salary, we will say $25,000 per year to begin on. If you develop the qualities expected, the sum shall be doubled the second year. Can you take the position at once, or do you want a week to settle your outside matters? In either case here is my hand, and permit me to offer you my heartiest congratulations. It always makes me happy to throw a good thing in a friend's way. If the salary isn't up to your expectations"—

"Oh, the salary is all right," smiled the collector, "but you're a day or two too late. I closed with an offer yesterday."

"You don't say? But you can throw it over, however—you will throw it over?"

"I couldn't do it. I am engaged as the manager of the Old Bilk Collection agency, and I must stick to it for a year. It's to collect debts from men like you, you know. In addition to the salary, there's a good deal of fun to be got out of it. About that $4, major?"

"How would it be if we threw you in $25,000 worth of stock as a present? Your dividends won't be less than 40 per cent. Man, don't miss a good thing when you have it right under your thumb."

"I don't propose to. I shall get 20 per cent for collecting this bill of you."

"Ha!" exclaimed the major as he got up and walked about. "I see how it is with you. I have not offered you salary enough. I don't know what the board of directors will think about it; but, knowing you as well as I do, I shall assume the responsibility of making it $50,000 for the first year, and I believe you will be cheap at that. While we have cropped the horseradish crops and got the bulge over red peppers, the corner must be rightly handled to make a success. I won't even ask you to lend me the $2 necessary to complete the articles of incorporation. My friend, accept my hand and my congratulations. I'll take you right over to the bank and introduce you."

"Not just yet," replied the man as he rose up and pulled off his coat and removed his cuffs.

"Are you too warm?" solicitously inquired the major, though a look of anxiety rested on his face at the same time.

"Not at all. I am simply getting ready to lick that $4 out of you. If you don't shell out within five minutes, I shall turn loose on you."

"My dear man, I fail to understand you. You call here to collect a trifling account. I acknowledge the correctness of it; but, unfortunately having left my checkbook at the house"—

"Will you pay?"

"I will of course hasten to my domicile and get the book and draw you a check, but really I must protest against"—

"You won't hasten anywhere. Shell out or take a licking."

"My dear sir, I"—

"Shell out."

The major shelled. It took him five long minutes to go through his pockets and find $1, and he was left with only 9 cents to face the cold world. The collector signed the bill, put on his coat and cuffs and walked out, with only a wink and a nod. When he had departed, the major sat down and reviewed the case from beginning to end and counted and recounted the 9 cents, and it was with a deep drawn groan that he leaned back at last and whispered to himself:

"That's the first bill I've had to pay in two years, and I don't understand how I came to pay that. I must be losing my cheek." M. QUAD.

Capitalists.

It appears to me dat de only man who expects to be strictly honest an' de feller who is calculatin' to git de best of me.

De pusson who starts out in dis world wid de idea dat he ain't gwine to make a fool of hisself about once in every six months has got heaps of surprise parties waitin' long de road fur him.

I hain't got no sort of use fur a liar, but I nebber sit down an' hev a good think by myself widout comin' to de conclusion dat half my troubles hev come from spunkin' de truth too often.

I hev tried to figger out how an alderman on a salary of $250 a y'ar kin save $5,000 in twelve months, while I airn $579 a y'ar and don't come out even, but it's beyond me. Dar seems to be some things natur' didn't intend fur us to find out.

I left my church bekase none of de rest of de congregation believed as I did 'bout Dan'l in de lions' den, and I j'ined up wid another to diskiver dat I didn't agree wid none of de rest of 'em 'bout Moses in de bulrushes.

I long ago diskivered dat de man who thinks as I do am a good feller an' ought to be mo' fully appreciated by de world at large, while de man who differs wid me am a crank an' de world would be better rid of him.

I used to be guided a good deal by dreems, but as time went on I found dat gittin' to work at seben o'clock in de mawnin' brought in mo' taters an' bacon dan dreamin' all night 'bout white cats bein' chassed around by black dawgs. I hold dat one peck of turnips will go further dan two nightmares. M. QUAD.

Mary had a little veal—
A cutlet, nicely broiled.
Her papa, to pay for that veal,
All morning sorely toiled.

Mary had a little steak—
A porterhouse, quite small—
And when the bill came in she sighed,
"No dress for me next fall."

Mary had a little roast—
As juicy as could be—
And Mary's papa simply went
Right into bankruptcy.

Mary isn't eating meat;
She has a better plan;
She vows it's ladylike to be
A vegetarian.

BEGGARS FORM A TRUST

New York Mendicants Have a Profit - Sharing Plan and School of Instruction.

New York is to be purged of the army of vagrants who have been imposing for years, with enormous profit, upon its generosity. It is the intention of Commissioner Partridge to clear the streets, once and for all, of these distressing figures. There are at present some 2,500 professional vagrants serving sentences in various institutions, who have been sent from New York city alone. The greater part of these have been detected and sentenced within the last year. The actual sums collected in this way by beggars on the streets of New York, until recently, aggregated hundreds of thousands of dollars a year.

With such profits professional begging in New York has grown to be a fine art. There have been a number of schools, as well as private instructors, for teaching the art.

Perhaps of all the most astounding disclosures has been the trust which regularly portioned off the city, collected blackmail from those occupying profitable posts and fixed the rate of instruction and percentages. Scores of beggars have been found to possess property to the amount of thousands of dollars. The records of the police courts where these impostures have been examined show that on the average nine in every ten of those arrested have confessed to be swindlers. In many cases the beggars have owned considerable property in New York or in their native lands, commonly in Italy. It is not unusual for a skillful beggar in a good position, to receive ten, fifteen or even twenty dollars a day.

The profession of begging in New York, at least regularly, supports thousands of men, women and children. It is well organized and is probably carried on with a degree of skill not to be found in any other city in the world. The existence of the Beggars' trust is more or less familiar. The remarkable care and intelligence shown in its organization compares favorably with the skill shown in more familiar business activities.

The trust, though it is, of course, without formal name or recognition, has regularly divided up the city into districts and exercises a tacit control over begging in those sections. The Fifth avenue corners are generally considered the most lucrative positions for begging in the world. The sidewalks of Sixth avenue, west of Broadway, are also highly considered. The hotel and theater districts of Upper Broadway, Madison avenue and the more important cross streets are also more or less under control of the Beggars' trust.

In order to enter the profession, certain definite and readily recognized qualifications are absolutely necessary. The apprentice must appear to be in a pitiable condition, as he or she must have a face and figure which may readily be made up to look the part. The latter condition is most common. Ninety-nine professional beggars in a hundred but ply their trade with careful perfection.

The strong able-bodied apprentice is made into an apparent cripple by lashing the arms tight to the body beneath his clothes, or one or both legs doubled up and inserted into a trouser leg, leaving the end to flap empty and loose. Men have been arrested who have made themselves blind by continual gazing at the sun.

SCHOOL FOR BEGGAR INSTRUCTION.

The so-called schools where beggars are instructed will perform such service as instruct the beggars to maltreat themselves, for a compensation. Their pay is usually contingent. The instructors prepare their pupils, deform their bodies, even maltreat them, and then give valuable instruction in posing or in guzing in a pitiable, beseeching manner.

When the course is complete, the graduate ventures out upon the street to ply his extraordinary trade. He is never allowed, however, to go alone. There is no honor among thieves of this type. The beggar who is considered a fit object of charity is regularly assigned to some street corner or other position under the tacit control of the trust. He is always accompanied by a spotter, who is the trusted agent of the school or organization. The spotter guides the beggar to his post, and then, at a convenient distance, continues to watch him narrowly all day long. Not a coin is given to the beggar but is observed and carefully noted by the spotter. At the end of the day's work the beggar is carefully searched to find if he has secreted any coins in his clothes unobserved by the spotter. The money received for the day's work is then divided into three parts; one part is kept by the beggar, the second by the agent, while the third goes to compensate the trust for all its trouble in setting the beggar up in business.

TYPES AND THEIR MAKE-UP.

There is practically no end of the types of beggars and to their means of deception. There are at present nine policemen, each a specialist in his line, who are set to watch these vagrants. The policemen are detailed for the service from the judicial courts. It requires a very intelligent and alert man to keep up with the various tricks of the beggars' trade.

There are about half a dozen conventional types of beggars in New York.

The most recent type to impose on public sympathy is the man, usually comfortably dressed, who may be seen ostentatiously eating dry bread is a ruse which rarely fails to bring alms from the most sophisticated. The trick is a very simple one. The beggar first distributes crusts of hard bread along the gutter, and then, when a crowd is passing, rushes out, picks up one of the crusts and begins to eat it ravenously. After he has collected a dollar or so from a sympathetic crowd, he drops the bread where he picked it up and awaits another crowd.

SEVEN MILES IN THE AIR.

James Glaisher, F. R. A. S., who made the highest balloon ascent ever recorded, has just celebrated the ninety-third anniversary of his birthday. Mr. Glaisher will be remembered by the world's scientists as the father of meteorology in England. He founded the Royal Meteorological society in 1850, and from 1841 until the present time has supplied the quarterly and annual meteorological reports published by the registrar general. Now he thinks it is time he handed over the task to another, says the London Mail.

It was on September 5, 1862, that Mr. Glaisher, accompanied by Mr. Coxwell, a dentist and aeronaut, made the most famous of his balloon ascents.

"I was a married man," he said yesterday, "and I did not think a married man ought to go ballooning, but I found that I must go up myself if I wanted observations properly taken, so I took to ballooning and made twenty-nine ascents."

The September ascent was from Wolverhampton. The balloon soared up above the clouds, and Mr. Glaisher, as was his custom, kept his eyes on the instruments and his notebook until he recorded a height of 28,000 feet. Then he found that he had lost the use of his limbs, and he saw Mr. Coxwell climb up to the ring and try to seize the valve rope. But Mr. Coxwell's hands were so benumbed that he could not use them. He seized the rope in his teeth and thus tugged the valve open.

Meanwhile Mr. Glaisher had fallen unconscious, with his head over the side of the car. He was unconscious for thirteen minutes, and when he recovered the balloon, which had been going up at the rate of 1,000 feet a minute, was descending at the rate of 2,000 feet a minute. During the interval it is calculated that the balloon rose to a height of over seven miles.

Another of Mr. Glaisher's adventures happened at Newhaven. While he and Mr. Coxwell were high up the clouds parted and they found themselves all but over the sea. Mr. Coxwell hung on to the valve rope so long that the balloon lost all its gas and fell two or three thousand feet to the earth. The car and the instruments were smashed, but the balloonists escaped with slight injuries.

DR. CONAN DOYLE.

Probably one of the best selling books of the day, although one which some critics do not rank as literature, is Dr. Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," in which he has brought to life his famous detective, Sherlock Holmes. Dr. Doyle is more interested, however, in the success of his pamphlet on the South African war, a serious attempt to solve the whole vexed question and by no means as entertaining as the pursuit of "The Hound."

DINNER SERVICE PRESENTED BY CUBANS TO GENERAL WOOD.

A feature of the recent launching of the Cuban republic was the presentation to General Leonard Wood of a handsome silver dinner service, the gift of the Cuban people. The service was ordered by cable from Tiffany & Co., New York. It was a rush order. The Cubans wanted the finest set which $5,000 could purchase and wanted it as quickly as possible. Within a few hours after the order was received the set shown above was shipped.

DIPLOMACY IN CHINA.

When the Russian government wants to conciliate or get any favor out of China it knows very well what to do. The Chinese love to be addressed in flowery and poetic language, and the Russians humor them to their hearts' content.

A fine example of such tactics was furnished recently in the following document which was addressed by the Russian government to Wang-Wen-Schao, a distinguished Chinese official. The Russian government desired to have the question in regard to Manchuria speedily settled, and it asked for his assistance.

"Our two countries," the document runs, "as you well know, have been true friends for thousands of years, and their boundaries touch each other in the same manner as the two lips of man, or as an axle touches the wheel of a carriage. Our friendship for you is, therefore, greater than that of any other country.

"I, the representative of Russia, who write this, have only been a short time in China, yet your country is in my mind day and night. Whatever grieves you grieves also my people, and whatever pleases you pleases us also. In other countries you will not find such cordiality as this."

Commenting on this a witty writer remarks that "there is another reason why the boundaries of these two countries resemble the lips of man, namely, because they are constantly moving."

SOME LIVE LAMPS.

In India there is a bird called the bottle bird, because it builds a nest which looks just like a bottle. But it is not the wonderful nest I wish to tell you about, but something much more wonderful, I think. You know in India birds have many enemies, and these enemies are afraid of light.

So when Mr. and Mrs. Bottle Bird make their home they stick ever so many balls of clay all around the front door. These are really candlesticks; but I do not believe you can guess what the candles themselves are. They are fire beetles. Fire beetles are something like our fireflies, only much brighter. Mr. and Mrs. Bottle Bird catch the fire beetles and stick them in the balls of clay, and there they stay, making the whole nest quite bright with light.

So you see Mr. and Mrs. Bottle Bird and all the little bottle birds can sleep quite peacefully all night, because they know they are safe from all enemies.

KING ALPHONSO IS COMIC.

In the light of this twentieth century the sixteen-year-old king of Spain looks fairly comical, says the Boston Herald. With his coming of age next month he assumes not merely the crown and scepter, but all the full dress uniforms appropriate to his rank as captain general and field marshal, and will don the garb of manhood, a frock coat and swallow-tail, and the tall silk hat that caps this climax of attire. For weeks now Alphonso has been in the hands of his tailors, between times assisting at grave and important meetings of his ministers, who are instructing him in the government of his kingdom, and, boy-like, he is full of self-importance and anticipation of his freedom from mother's apron string.

Nevertheless, it is a sorry day for the king when he legally parts from her wise guidance. She has been a good and devoted mother; opinion says no king of Spain has ever had one like her, and if Alfonso XIII. is worth anything hereafter it will be due to her untiring care for him, morally and physically. But fancy this boy ruling!

ELECTRIC WEB FOR PARIS.

Parisians are so pleased with their electric Metropolitan, and have demonstrated their satisfaction with the existing line in so substantial a manner that the municipal authorities have been encouraged to make arrangements for the development of the underground system here on a truly gigantic scale. No fewer than six new lines were planned some time ago, on nearly all of which the work of excavation and building is proceeding.

Now it is proposed to construct seven more underground electric railways, which will make fourteen in all. The map of Paris showing the projected system, which forms several concentric circles in the city, traversed by numbers of straight lines in all directions, looks exactly like a spider's web. The actual reality will be that when all these plans are carried out the city will be converted into a sort of antihill, burrowed with dozens of subterranean passages, and some people are beginning to wonder whether the upper stratum of Paris will stand all this tunneling. Several years, however, must elapse before the gigantic schemes of the municipal council can possibly be carried out.—London Telegraph.

At Robison Park Theater.

The vaudeville attractions for next week at Robison park theater will include several of the leading features of the present year, which are as follows: Hugh Stanton and Florence Modena, presenting the sketch called "For Reform," which is said to be one of the funniest of the present so called line of sketches dealing with the trials and tribulations of an attorney at law. Ruth Gig and Claire will present the piece "The Wax Doll," in which is introduced the piano playing of Claire, sometimes called the Miniature Paderewski. She is but seven years of age, but has extraordinary musical ability, and although she cannot read a note plays anything after hearing it once. She usually astonishes her hearers with the skill, correct touch and perfect time with which she plays the most difficult pieces. One of her favorite selections is "Tell Me Pretty Maiden," from Florodora, which she plays in five different keys. She learned it from hearing it played on a zither only once. Several selections which she is very fond of are the "Zamona" dance from "King Dodo," selections from "William Tell," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and the Brownie dance. Artie Hall, the genuine Georgia girl, the greatest success in singing coon melodies of the year will be seen in her own original creations. The Powers Brothers, called Alphonse and Gaston, will introduce a new and novel act in the way of trick bicycle riding. John T. Powers, the Tommy Atkins of vaudeville, and one of the greatest comedians of the age, is also a feature for next week.

WAS TOO INQUISITIVE.

A train was just starting out from Kings Cross when a shirt-sleeved man came rushing down the platform shouting, "Smith, Smith!"

A man in one of the last carriages, which was a corridor one, heard the shout, and being naturally curious put his head out of the window. As he did so the man running along the platform reached him and struck him a hard blow in the face. By the time he had recovered from his surprise the train was outside the station, so he at once summoned the car attendant.

"What kind of an outrage is this?" he demanded of the attendant. "Here am I, an innocent passenger, sitting in this carriage just as the train pulls out of the station. Suddenly some man runs down the platform shrieking 'Smith, Smith!' I look out of the window and he reaches up and almost knocks my head off. Now I want to——"

"Pardon me," interrupted the attendant. "Is your name Smith?"

"No, it isn't, and that is just what makes——"

"Well, then, sir, what did you look out of the window for? There wasn't anybody calling you, was here?"—Pearson's Weekly.

HOPELESS CASES.

When the doctor leaves and says the case is hopeless, what remains to be done? Nothing, if the doctor's word is final. Much, if you will listen to the statements of men and women who were once "hopeless cases" given up by doctors, and who were perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Nothing is more sure than that thousands of men and women with diseased lungs, obstinate coughs, hemorrhage, emaciation and night-sweats, have been restored to perfect health by the use of the "Discovery." Will it cure you?

It has cured in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred where it was given a fair and faithful trial. By that record you have only two chances in a hundred of failure and ninety-eight chances of being restored to perfect health. It is worth trying.

Abram Freer, Esq., of Rockbridge, Greene Co., Ill., writes: "My wife had a severe attack of pleurisy and lung trouble; the doctors gave her up to die. She commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she began to improve from the first dose. By the time she had taken eight or ten bottles she was cured, and it was the cause of a large amount being sold here. I think the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the best medicine in the world for lung trouble."

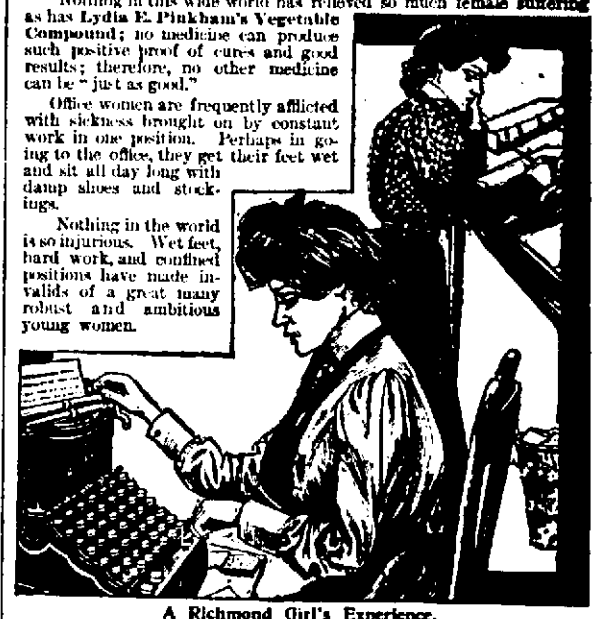
TO YOUNG WOMEN

A Denver, Colorado, Young Woman recently Wrote a Letter to Mrs. Pinkham, which Aptly Pictures the Condition of a Great Many Young Women. Read What She Says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—This is the first opportunity I have found to write and thank you for the good your Vegetable Compound has done me. I feel better than I have for years. It seems a 'seven days' wonder' to my friends. Where I used to be pitied, everything is the opposite now, and there is not a day but some one wants to know what I have done to make myself look so well.

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I had constant headaches, was constipated, bloated, eyes weak and watery, bearing-down pains, pains in the small of my back and right side; took cold very easily, which always caused intense pain in the ovaries, and I did not want to go anywhere or see any one. I was called cross, but I could not help it, feeling as I did. I could not lift anything or do any hard work without suffering for days afterwards. Menstruation lasted for eight or ten days, the first three or four days being almost constant pain day and night."

Nothing in this wide world has relieved so much female suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; no medicine can produce such positive proof of cures and good results; therefore, no other medicine can be "just as good."



Office women are frequently afflicted with sickness brought on by constant work in one position. Perhaps in going to the office, they get their feet wet and sit all day long with damp shoes and stockings.

Nothing in the world is so injurious. Wet feet, hard work, and confined positions have made invalids of a great many robust and ambitious young women.

A Richmond Girl's Experience.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have just purchased a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound but am advised to write you before treating myself.

"I hardly know how to express myself. At times I feel well, and in less than ten minutes I am actually wretched with headache, that tired feeling, and so nervous that the sound of a door bell will make me start. I cannot walk two blocks without feeling fatigued. Menstruation has never been regular, have a slight discharge of leucorrhoea. I would like your advice, and sincerely hope I may find relief in your medicine."—MISS CLARA POSTERWIG, Richmond, Va. (Oct. 26, 1900.)

Statement No. 2.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It gives me great pleasure to thank you for the benefit I received from your Vegetable Compound.

"When I wrote to you I could not go up-stairs or walk a hundred yards without being completely fagged out, but to-day I can easily walk two miles. I was also very nervous and suffered from a misery in my back but these troubles are all a thing of the past. I was at a loss to describe my feelings, but now thanks to your Vegetable Compound I am a well woman.

"I advise all suffering women to write to Mrs. Pinkham, and I shall never fail to recommend your remedies to my friends."—MISS CLARA POSTERWIG, Richmond, Va. (March 26, 1901.)

Miss Thompson's Pains are Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For several years I had suffered with loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, constipation, palpitation of the heart, headache, pains in nearly all parts of the body. My physician said it was only indigestion, but his medicine did not help me any. I began the use of your Vegetable Compound. I have taken four bottles and now those troubles are cured. I cannot praise it enough."—MISS BELLE S. THOMPSON, Box 14, Acushnet, Mass.

THE TALMAGE SERMON.

(Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage, D. D., Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago, in the Christian Herald.)

In this sermon Rev. Dr. Talmage discourses on the human face. "Christ's Photograph" is the topic of the discourse and the text is from II Cor. iv., 6: "The Face of Jesus Christ."

Character is stamped upon the human face. By that I do not mean a good man necessarily has a beautiful face and a bad man a homely face. Some of the most sinful men have the handsomest faces. The morally corrupt and evil-minded Edward IV. of England had a face of such singular beauty that it became the idol of London. When the king asked a rich lady for ten pounds to help carry on the war against France she replied: "For thy comely face thou shalt have twenty." When the king kissed her with his smiling lips, the rich old lady made the gift 40 pounds instead of twenty. On the other hand, some of the kindest and best men have facial features which shock every artistic idea of harmonious proportions. But when I state that character can be read in the face, I mean that if a man is a good man there is generally something in the smile of his lip, the glance of his eye, the wrinkles of his cheek, the set of his jaw, which suggests that he is a good man. If a man is bad, there are telltale signs in the face which prove that he is a bad man.

By long and bitter experience you have learned that the revealing power of the face is true. You have also learned that your wife can read the character in the human face a great deal better than her husband. When a younger man, you used to bring your friends home to spend the evening. After those friends had gone, you would turn and say: "My dear, how did you like Mr. So and So?" Your wife would answer, "I do not like him at all. He is not a man to be trusted. You had better beware, and not get mixed up in any business dealings with that man. I do not like his face." Or, your wife would answer, "I like that man. I wish you would invite him up again to the house. I like his eye and the curve of his lip. I like his face." In almost every case, as you found out later, your wife's estimate of your friends' characters was right. She judged them by the face.

After my father died, I stayed alone with his body for two nights. We were alone, as we often used to be, when traveling around the world together. One night, as I sat there by his side, I found myself speaking aloud. I was startled by the sound of my own voice, as I soliloquized, "No man could have had a face like that unless he was a good man."

MY FATHER HAD THE INDEX

of his beautiful life stamped upon his face, even in the unconscious pose of death.

Now Paul declares that the glory of God was revealed to man in the face of Jesus Christ. As we have no authentic picture of Jesus, I would try to paint a word-picture of the Divine face by recounting some of Christ's mental and spiritual characteristics.

This was the method by which we obtained a picture of my brother, after he was dead. For years before his demise, he had not been to a photographer. So, after the funeral, we took to an artist all the pictures which my brother had taken in his boyhood. We also took a lock of his hair. We told the artist about my brother's happy nature; told how the jokes which he perpetrated would be revealed in his smile and laughing eye. We talked about his nature, so that the artist might paint that nature in the young man's face.

Emperor William the First, of Germany, wanted an artist to paint the face of his mother, Princess Louise, as she was when in the prime of her physical beauty. He took all the different pictures of the dead empress to the artist's studio. There the royal son told that artist the characteristics of his mother. From his verbal portraiture, that artist painted the famous ideal picture of Princess Louise descending the steps of her palace. May God help me today to paint aright the face of Jesus Christ!

Jesus must have had an intelligent face. Phrenologists teach that the seat of the brain is under the dome of the skull. They assert that certain characteristics of the brain can be read by the contour of the skull, as a blind man with his fingers, reads by the raised letters of the Braille alphabet. But the intelligence of the brain can be traced in the face, as well as upon the top of the head, in the formation of the mouth as well as in the phrenological charts mapped off upon the back of the skull. The thin lip of the Caucasian is entirely different from the thick lip of the African. The deep-set eyes and overhanging brows of the university scholar are totally different from the twinkling eyes and narrow frontal bones of the Australian aborigines. Some men's faces are so expressive that when they turn their keen eyes upon you they seem to bore a hole right into the heart of your very being. If you try to deceive them the look upon their faces reveals the fact that they know you are not telling the truth.

Ormsby Mitchell, the astronomer, one day was making some dial observations. As the sun was setting, a hill seven miles away was focused by the cyclopian eye of the telescope. While the astronomer was seated there in his observatory, he saw two boys stealing apples from an orchard which grew upon the top of that hill. So some men's eyes are such intelligent, penetrative eyes, that they seem to have been watching you, even when you were miles away.

WEBSTER'S PERSONALITY.

Bayard Taylor relates a remarkable incident of the power of Daniel Webster's eye and face. During the time when the senator from Massachusetts was being bitterly assailed in his own state and abroad, in company with James Russell Lowell and a party of Harvard classmates, Taylor went to a Boston meeting with the avowed intention of interrupting Mr. Webster's speech and turning his remarks into ridicule. "When Mr. Webster arose to speak," wrote Bayard Taylor, "he turned his great eyes upon us students. As he did so, he seemed to us to read our very thoughts. The intelligence of his face seemed to speak volumes, although his lips had not yet parted. We college boys came to scoff. We dared not move, so subdued were we at the sight of that great lawyer's face."

Go with me where you will, into the studies of the great masters of the law, of literature, music, sculpure, or the sciences, and almost without exception, the intelligence of these mental giants has been made manifest in their faces. A Hugo, a Tennyson, a Dante, a Milton, a Luther, a Calvin, all prove by their physiognomy that this statement is true. So Christ must have had an intelligent face. It was not, as some artists have painted it, the face of an impractical dreamer nor of a fanatic nor of an effeminate nonentity. His was the face of one who had a masterful mind. When we begin to study Christ's face, we are impressed with the conviction that his eye was that the brain back of that face was an omnipotent brain, that the ear was an all-hearing ear. That face revealed the fact that Christ knew all from eternity past to eternity to come. But what is more important to us personally, when we look upon Christ's face, is that we intuitively feel Christ knows every thought and hope and deed of our lives. He knows what we have done, and what we would have liked to do.

As a little child, when I would be sent to bed for having done wrong, I could see in the darkness of the bedroom, the face of Christ hovering over and watching me. I used to bury my head in the pillow and cover myself up completely with the bedclothes, yet I could not blot out that Christ face. It always seemed to me to be looking when I did wrong. Christ's face was watching me with an all-seeing eye. Yes, Christ must have had an intelligent face, for it was an omniscient face.

Jesus Christ's face was also a sympathetic and forgiving face. How many men we have seen whose faces represented intelligent power, but without mercy. Faces such as you could easily imagine a Robespierre might have had or a King Richard, who murdered the princes in the tower, or a Frankenstein, or any of the great leaders of the Inquisition. Those were the faces of men like Napoleon, who hearing a marshal of France, after a bloody battle, express regret over the awful slaughter of human life, replied, "Oh, that is nothing. In order to make an omelette, you must break a few eggs." Those were the faces of men like Prince Nawab, who drove 146 British prisoners into the Black Hole of Calcutta, a stifling room only eighteen feet square, and left them there until the misery of all but twenty-three was ended by suffocation. Those were the kind of faces that must have been possessed by men like Nana Sahib, the fiend of Cawnpore, and women like Catherine de Medici, the evil spirit of Saint Bartholomew's massacre when thirty thousand French Huguenots were slain in one day.

A CHILD'S QUESTION.

But all strong faces are not evil faces. Some of the strongest faces we have ever seen have been the sweetest and most magnanimous. These faces had a love-attracting power for the beholders, like the face of old Doctor Plumer, one of the strongest men the American pulpit ever produced. Doctor Plumer's face was a sweet and tender and loving face, although one of the strongest of faces. One day, as he was walking across a Pittsburg park, a little child ran up to him and took his hand. Then, looking up into that great, good face—a face that never had any bitterness against any one, but only forgiveness—the child asked, "I say, minister, are you God?" So, we must not think of Christ's face only as an intelligent face, a face of power, but also as a loving, sympathetic, forgiving face. We must think of him as having the same kind of a face your earthly father may have had. You remember when, in the past, you did what your father had forbidden, you came to his side and buried your face in his lap and cried, "Father, will you forgive me?" Then you remember how he took you up in his great, strong arms. What a sweet look came into his loving face! How his lip trembled and his eyes filled with tears, as he said, "My boy, my dear little son, I was in hopes that you would come to me as you have done. My heart was almost breaking, my child, because you did wrong. But it was breaking the more, because my little son did not come to his father and ask to be forgiven." And then, you found that the tears which trickled down your cheek were not those which came from your eyes alone. Mingled with them were the tears which flowed from your earthly parent's eyes. Yes, our Christ's face, although a strong face, was a sympathetic face.

EXPRESSIVE OF FORGIVENESS.

And my Christ's face must have been a forgiving face, because it was such an intelligent face. He knows all that we have done and suffered. He also well knows how hard some of us have struggled in our own strength to do right. He knows how we have grappled, each of use with his own besetting sin, which we dare not tell to human ear. He knows, yes he knows, how impossible it is for us to succeed in battling that sin in our own strength. So when we come to Christ to ask for help to resist the evil present and to avert the evil future, as well as to wipe out the evil past, oh then, the strong face of Christ becomes a tender, sympathetic, forgiving face. Our Saviour's eyes will fill with tears of joy. Our Saviour's lip will quiver. Our Saviour's look will be one of pardon and of unutterable love.

Christ's face is a scarred face. "No, no," says some one, "please do not tell me that my Christ's face is a scarred face. I have always thought of Jesus' face as the most beautiful ever owned by man. I have always believed his face was as beautiful as the Christ face described in the exquisite portrait carved upon an emerald by the order of Tiberius Caesar: 'His forehead was plain and very delicate. His face was without spot or wrinkle, beautiful with a lovely red. His nose and mouth were so formed that nothing could be reprehended. His beard was thickish, in color like his hair, not very long, but forked. His look was innocent and mature. His eyes were clear and quick. He was a man for his singular beauty, surpassing the children of men.'"

But, my friends, that portrait of Christ's face which was carved upon the emerald by Caesar's order, has been proven by the archaeologists to have been a description taken from a spurious tablet. It was a forgery, and was not written until two hundred years after Christ's death. So, in order to find whether or no Christ's face was a scarred face, we must turn to the words of the bible. Was his forehead scarred? Oh, yes, the crucifiers plaited a crown of thorns upon his head. As the sharp thorns were driven into the white skin, the blood must have flowed. The skin must have been lacerated. Read from Isa. 52:14: "His visage was so marred, more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men." Turn to the 14th chapter of Mark: "And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophesy; and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands." After the agonies of the crucifixion, could Christ's face be other than a scarred face?

ELOQUENT SCARS.

And Christ's face is a scarred face, because it is the face of One who realized the awful nature of sin. Though Christ could forgive us our sins by the sacrifice of blood, yet he could not take away the punishment for sin. So he offered his own face to be lacerated. He offered his eyes to become glossy in death. Yet, the scarred and disfigured face of Christ will be more beautiful to the redeemed spirit in the heavenly land than if those divine features were without spot or blemish. The scars upon his face will appeal to us in the same way that the wrinkles upon our mother's face touched our hearts when she lay asleep in the casket. We looked at the wrinkles, and said, "That wrinkle came when she took care of me while I was sick with diphtheria. This wrinkle came when my brother died. That other wrinkle came when she was preparing my clothes for college. Yonder wrinkle came the night I was married and left home." Therefore, to us children, those wrinkles were beautiful, because they told the story of her vicarious love and suffering. Yes, in heaven, we want to see our mother's wrinkles, that came as the battle-scars of life, while fighting for her children. In heaven we also want to see the scarred face of Jesus, which scars were cut into his fair skin while suffering for our redemption.

When Alexander the Great had his portrait painted, he made the artist represent him with his head resting upon his hand. The emperor did this so that his forehead might cover up a deep scar which was slashed into his right cheek by the sword of an enemy. But when the bible paints for us Christ's face, it does not cover up one of the divine scars. To the Christian, the most beautiful parts of the divine face should be the places which reveal to us how Christ suffered and died that we might live.

A ILLUMINED FACE.

The scarred face of Christ is an illumined face. Have you ever seen a sad countenance light up with a smile? Have you ever heard a little child burst forth into a laugh in the midst of a fit of crying—laugh when a tear is yet glistening upon the wet cheek? Well, Christ's face, though in one sense a sad face, a scarred face, is yet an illumined face. It has joy in the eye, joy on the lip, joy in the cheek, joy everywhere, when one of his loved ones has been saved by the sacrifice of his blood. There is more joy in that divine face over one sinner that repenteth, than over ninety and nine just persons that need no repentance.

If Christ's had not been an illumined face, the little children would not have loved to run to him. Children are attracted by a smile. They are afraid of tears. Yet everywhere, as Jesus' smiling face appears, we can hear the children calling to one another. "Come! come! Here is Jesus, Come! come!" If Jesus' face was not an illumined face, he could never have spoken such triumphant words as these which he spoke to him sick of the palsy, "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins are forgiven thee." He could never have spoken such words of commendation as those he spoke in reference to the Centurion: "Verily, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." And, oh, my brother, if our sins are making the Saviour's face such a sad face, and if our repentance will make Christ's face such an illumined face, should we not be willing to brighten up our Saviour's face since it has suffered so much?

But the sweetest thought to me of all is that Christ's is a face that wants to be loved. Some portraits have an indescribable something about them which proves that those faces crave affection. If the closed lips could speak, they would say, "I live for others, in order that others might live for me. I love, in order that I can be loved. I suffer, in order that others can be made happy. And being happy, they can pour out their gratitude upon me.

I only awoke to the fact, a few years ago, that Christ's face was a face that wanted to be loved. I used to think that I must love Christ because Christ could and would save me if I asked Him. But now, I have learned to love Him, because He loves me and wants me to love Him. He loves me with a love that passeth all understanding. But that love is incomplete, unless I respond to it and love as I am loved. Mr. Moody told a pathetic story how, a short time after his father's death, his elder brother ran away from home. Then he described how his mother used to be continually watching for the return of the prodigal; how she would send the children every day down to the post office to find out if there were a letter from her absent boy. They would hear her praying at night for the return of her son, that he might give her his love. Well, today, Christ's face is a face craving affection.

A COMPOSITE PICTURE.

Are you ready to satisfy the cravings for affection which are pictured upon Christ's face? Are you willing to have your face stamped upon Christ's heart? If you would, you cannot have your face there alone. There are many faces imprinted upon His heart, and yet all these faces blend into one. These faces, which are stamped upon the tender loving, forgiving heart of Christ, make a composite picture. When you graduated from college the photographer made a composite picture of your class. He took all the different photographs of the members and passed them rapidly before the camera's eye. Then the various photographs were combined in a single picture, and that was called the class portrait. So, upon Christ's heart, there is a composite picture. That composite portrait is made up of your Christian mother's and father's faces, your Christian wife's and child's faces; it is made from the faces of the Christian men and women who have died in the past, and of those who are living today. Will you have your face in this composite picture, which is ineffaceably stamped upon the great heart of Christ?

But, sad to relate, after all Christ has suffered and done for us, His face may be a condemning face. The divine love may be great enough to surpass all human understanding, yet the divine love is not blind. The Spirit of God will not always strive with man. In Ezekiel we read, "My face will I turn also from them." Oh, the awful moment when Christ's face, on account of our unrepented sins, shall become a condemning face! This is one characteristic of Christ which all unrepentant sinners and some ministers preaching in the sacred pulpits are trying not to see. But if Jesus is not to have a condemning face for the unrepentant sinner, how can you account for the parable of the shepherd separating the sheep from the goats? There is going to come a day when Christ shall gather before the judgment seat of God all the nations of the earth. Crash! crash! crash! will go every tombstone. The mausoleums shall rock and heave as the Philippian jail trembled during the night of Paul and Silas' incarceration. Every gate and slab door will fly open. The tall cemetery shafts shall tumble, as did the walls of Jericho at the blast of the ram's horn. The bodies of the sailors sleeping by the coral reefs, the emigrants who died when crossing the prairie, the Arctic explorers buried under the snow and ice, the missionaries who died upon the Congo—they shall all come up. The dead which slept under the dome of a Taj Mahal, and the poor unknown patient who died in the county hospital and whose body was buried in Potter's field—shall come up. The bodies of the rich and the poor alike, the black and the white, the Jew and the Gentile, they shall all come up. Then Christ shall separate this multitude which is gathered before Him, as a shepherd separates his sheep from the goats. Toward the sheep, the Savior will turn a forgiving face. But towards the goats He shall turn a condemning face, when He says, "Depart from Me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire." If Christ is not to have a condemning face to those who have not repented of their sins, how can you account for the scene in the parable of the ten virgins? As we read that parable we see the five foolish virgins who had not prepared for the bridegroom's coming, standing without and pounding upon the door of the banquet hall. We soon hear them crying, "Lord, Lord, open unto us. But He answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not." Two men shall be working in the fields, the one shall be taken and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill, the one shall be taken and the other left. Two immortals shall be standing at the marriage altar, the one shall be taken and the other left. Oh, my friends, I beg and plead with you to look into the forgiving face of Christ while it is yet time. Do not let the Savior's face ever become to you a condemning face.

When the apostate Julian was dying upon the field of battle, he looked up and saw the overhanging cross and the face of Jesus. Then he cried, "Thou, oh, Galilean, thou hast at last conquered." Shall we not one and all be conquered by the face of Jesus Christ? Conquered, not as the infidel was conquered, but conquered by the Christ-love. Conquered by our making complete surrender to Him of our lives? Conquered by having our faces as His disciples engraved upon Christ's heart?

A MODERN INSTANCE.

Story of Obscene Pictures, an Unjust Accusation and a Sadly-Blighted Childhood.

I felt him before I saw him. I heard a stealthy movement behind me, as of some creature in trouble creeping into the car. I had been watching the parting groups on the platform of the little country station, but this passenger was not one of them.

Turning, I faced the boy, as he shuffled past me and huddled into the corner seat in the front end of the car. Oh, such a face for a boy! Enough to break a mother's heart! And in the eyes a look that appealed to all the protecting tenderness a woman can know.

The boy was about 14, but pale and thin, and, crouching low in the seat, he looked scarcely 12 years old. His face and hands were dirty, as if with long and rough travel, his clothing soiled, his coat torn and dusty. He sat with his back half turned toward me, intently watching the door. His pallor showed through the grime, yet, as the conductor entered, I noted an added wave of sickly wanness spreading over his tanned neck, and a great pulse began to flutter in and out beneath his ear.

I leaned forward, apprehensive of—I knew not what.

What the boy said was too low for my ears, but the conductor's voice was clear and stern. "Eh? No ticket! Then you must pay your fare. What? No money, either! Not a cent? Then what are you doing here. How dare you board the train? I'll have to put you off at the next station."

A wave of painful red passed over the tanned neck. The boy's rejoinder was long, but still inaudible to my ears.

The conductor's voice softened a little as he said: "I'll see to you when I come back," and passed on his rounds.

The boy rose unsteadily, and passed the back of his hand across his eyes. He passed out and forward into the smoking car. He walked with a limp. Was he going to throw himself from the train? Should I run after him? Should I call the brakeman? Or was he only going to beg his fare from some kind-faced traveling salesman in the smoker?

When the conductor, at liberty, returned through our car, I stopped him with my questions. "No," he said, "no need of money for him, but the little rascal looks hungry. Yes, I'll take them to him; thanks. Looks to me like a case of runaway boy, but he says he is trying to get home, and, if he tells the truth, I'll put him through."

Soon the conductor returned, with my napkin and sandwich case.

"I guess the little chap is all square," he said. "He claims to live at W——, where my home is, and I know the name he gives. There is such a family there, and he told me where his brother works, and his sister is a teacher in one of the schools.

"It is the end of my run, and when we get to W—— I'll take him to the house myself, before I go home, and try to see his mother alone.

"Yes, he has a mother living, but he is afraid his father won't let him stay. Oh, no! not any trouble at all! We have lots of such cases. Only what I'd want a man to do for one of my little chaps. Maybe you could find out more of his trouble, and help put him right. I'll send him back in here."

When the child returned I went and sat by his side, and, without a word, took his thin and feverish hand in mine. Presently the whole story burst, like a torrent long repressed, from the starved, defrauded young heart, yes, from the breaking child-heart, bearing its tortures of grief alone, in a Christian land, with a home, a father, a mother, a young lady sister, a big brother and a baby sister.

And what had caused all his misery? What had the child done? Let his own incoherent words tell:

"Yes, ma'am, I will. I'll tell you the whole thing, straight, hope to die if I don't. It was all in school the trouble happened. Wish I hadn't a gone that day! And I never done a thing, honor bright! This is the way it begun. A big boy—he was visiting our room—he give me a book and nodded for me to hand it across the aisle to Alice. Alice, she's the preacher's girl, and when she took it, a lot of things fell out of the book onto the floor, and teacher she heard it, and came and picked 'em all up, and they was bad pictures, and bad folks naked on 'em.

"An' they found some more, in the corner of my desk, but I never saw one of 'em before, hope to die! And Alice she cried, and nobody wouldn't believe me, and teacher she took and locked me up till the superinteadent come back from the other schoolhouse, and he wouldn't believe me neither, and they had the whole school board into it, and they turned me out of school! And I never laid eyes on their old pictures, till I saw the teacher pick them up, after Alice dropped 'em.

"But pa, he wouldn't believe me, and he beat me with a cane, till ma she made him stop, and he never done it before; and ma, she cried all night, and when sister came home she wouldn't let me be in the same room, and she said if I wasn't made an example of her room would cut up worse than ever.

"And Alice was sick and had to stay out, and when she went the girls wouldn't speak to her, and after awhile her pa—the preacher, you know—he had to move away to a new church, where they didn't blame Alice, 'cause some of the scholars said that she brought the pictures to school.

"But I know she didn't, 'cause Tom, my chum, he risked a lickin' to come up in our barn to see me, and he told how that big boy had visited our room, he bought cigarettes, and the candy-kitchen woman she tore 'em open and dropped a roll of pictures on the floor, 'cause she dast'ent to sell 'em, and the boy he sneaked around and picked 'em up, and put some in the book he got me to hand to Alice, and when he see the teacher was a-coming he just tucked the rest into the corner of my desk, and Tom saw it all.

"And ma she come in the night, and she put some cool stuff on the big welts when pa licked me, and she cried some more, and she said: 'Now, George,'—and she wouldn't call ma Georgie! no she wouldn't!"—(here the tears came)—"but she said: 'Now, George, if you will only tell me the truth, and confess where you got those shameful pictures, I will believe you, and try to forgive you, and you can kiss little sister again,' (for she'd kept me away from the baby, as if I was so bad I'd black off onto her), and I couldn't say nothing but just what I had said, to the teacher and all the board, and so I said: 'Why, ma, I have told you all I know about it. That boy that went away the next day, he gave me the book to hand to Alice, and I never knew anything was in the book. And Tom saw him stick the rest in my desk, but his ma won't let him mix up in it.' But ma, she just cried some more, and said: 'Oh, George, if I could only get you to confess, maybe your father wouldn't send you away!' 'Away!' says I. 'Yes,' ma says, 'he is going to send you away, to get you out of bad company, to his brother's on the farm, for you can't go to school here, you know, and your poor sister is afraid she can't keep her place if you stay.'

"So pa he wrote a letter to Uncle Alf, and I don't know what was in it, but he wrote back, and then I had to go. And ma, she felt so bad she wouldn't let the baby kiss me good-by, and the baby stretched out her little hands and cried after me, and I guess I'd a died, only ma run after us and give me one good hug. But pa, he just blowed his nose, and said the train was there, and I must be a good boy and work hard, and then the train started.

"Uncle Alf begun hard on me first off, and he made me work early and late, and I never stayed any on a farm before, and he expected me to know it all, and I got so lame and stiff, and I let the horse step on my foot, and he wouldn't let me stop work, and I guess I'll always limp, and the hired man that slept with me, he was mean to me, and I didn't have a thing to read, and all the time Aunt Jane had kept the children away from me as if I was pison, and I got so homesick I thought I should die, and one night I just got up and started home, but Uncle Alf he heard me, and he took after me with a rawhide and said he'd teach me to run away. See that—that's where the end of it cut me! That was a week ago, but it seems a year, and early yesterday morning I hid in a place I found, and when they was all out a-lookin' for me, I crawled out, and run for life, and here I be, and I've just got to get home, even if I can't go to school, and I'll just hang onto my ma, and make her believe me, 'cause I told her the truth about them pictures. It's pa I'm afraid of, but he ain't like Uncle Alf, after all.

"Say, lady, I wish you'd tell me what makes 'em let folks put such pictures inside cigarettes?"

"I could not tell him. Friends, can you?

But what if the next innocent victim of our faulty civilization should be your boy, or my boy? Oh, be sure his mother would believe him, and never fail him, though all the world beside visited upon his helpless head the blame that lies upon us all—citizens, who let this accursed thing flourish in our midst.

And what of the motherless Alice, with taint on her budding girlhood? What of her father, the man of God, driven from his parish by injustice?

Whose business is it to cleanse our news-stands, our candy-kitchens, our grocery-stores and our restaurants from these vile destroyers of our dearest and our best? Mrs. McVean-Adams, in Union Signal.

The Boy Giant and His Pet Tiger

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY CAROLINE WETHERELL

One day in the woods all alone
Ah Grim heard a pitiful moan.
A tiger he found
Stretched out on the ground,
A thorn in his paw to the bone.
Ah Grim, with "It won't hurt a mite!"
With a bow and "Excuse me" polite,
Extracted the thorn
Which had made the beast mourn
And caused it to purr with delight.

The tiger, by gratitude tamed,
The pet of Ah Crim was proclaimed.
So gentle was he
That he ate cake and tea
And became in that region quite famed.
Many tricks to the tiger Grim taught
And bravely was each of them wrought;
He could climb and could bowl,
He could jump o'er a pole
And drop to the earth as if shot.

Educated Seals.

Seals are not only capable of being trained while in captivity, but it may be truly said that they may be educated. They are extremely sensitive to sounds and can even be taught to enunciate short syllables. I had one who could say "pa" and "ma" intelligibly, and no doubt with larger instruction it might have acquired other words. This one would also play a tune through on a hand organ by holding on to the crank with his right flipper. He could also make as graceful a bow as any lady need wish to receive. He would throw water over you with his flippers and expect you to enjoy it as much as he did. He would also follow me about like a dog and was not even discouraged by a flight of stairs, up and down which he would go to keep me in sight. When I was obliged to leave him at night or any other time, he would beckon to me with his head and neck "to come back" just as plainly as words could have expressed the feeling, and when he could no longer see me he would cry like a child.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Barometer Boy.

"The rain will come down in a tempest today;
The wind is so dreadfully cool,
And (if you ask me) I should certainly say
That it's wiser to stay
At home in the dry than go roaming away
To the horrible school,"
Said Freddie Maguire
As he sat by the fire
On a beautiful stool.

"I'm sorry for that," said mamma, "for you see,
There's a trip up the river today,
I meant you to go with your father and me.
At a quarter to three
The steamer, I hear, will be leaving the quay.
But then, as you say,
Such a trip would be vain
When there's sure to be rain
And the clouds are so gray."

"Oh, mother!" said Freddie. "I fancy, you know,
The wind is a bit on the wane,
And faintly the sun is beginning to show,
While the meadows below
Are surely more bright than a moment ago,
And on looking again
I think it would do.
Yes; I'm sure it won't rain.
Yes; I'm sure it won't rain."

Suffers From Chilblains and Begins Throwing Bouquets at Mrs. Bowser, but They Soon Quarrel Over Question of Remedy.

(Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.)

As Mr. Bowser sat smoking and reading Mrs. Bowser noticed that he had worked his slippers off and was rubbing his feet together, and presently she asked:

"Have you got chilblains again?"

"Just a touch, perhaps, but nothing to complain of," he answered. "I was just thinking what a nice, cozy home we have and how I enjoy these evenings."

"I am glad you find it so," she replied as her heart swelled a little.

"Why shouldn't I be pleased? I don't always say that I fully appreciate this thing or that, but I assure you that I do just the same. I expect that if husbands praised their wives oftener there would be fewer family jars."

"Wives like to be appreciated," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Of course they do, and husbands ought to realize it more fully than they do. I want you to know, dear, that, though we have been married several years, I love you just as much as I did the day we were married."

Mrs. Bowser rose up and blushed and hugged him.

"I expect," he continued after a pause—"I expect that I am sometimes almost overbearing and inclined to be a bulldozer, but I hope you will overlook the fact."

"I always do, my dear."

"Husbands are apt to think they know it all, you know, and that wives are entirely out of the count. It's a great mistake. We'd all hit the mark oftener if we consulted our wives more frequently. From this on I wish you'd counsel with me on all important matters."

"I should be so glad!"

"You are a woman of extraordinary intelligence. You have great perceptive powers. You have good business ideas. Had I made it a rule to consult you in the past I know that I should have made fewer blunders. While I think of it, dear, I wish to beg your pardon for one particular thing, though it happened a year or more ago."

"Why, you haven't done anything!"

"Yes, I have, and I've been heartily ashamed of myself ever since. You remember the evening last winter my chilblains were itching so?"

"Oh, yes!"

"I wasn't exactly responsible for what I said that evening, but nevertheless I beg your pardon. You wanted me to try borax water, you know, and I guess—I guess I called you a silly-head. Will you forgive me?"

"Of course. But it was alum water I wanted you to use, and had you done so"—

"Alum water! No, no, no, my dear! You insisted that I soak my feet in borax water, and my natural sense told me what a silly thing it would be. Who ever heard of curing chilblains with borax water?"

"No one, I guess; but alum water is an old fashioned remedy. If you had used it as I wished you to"—

"You wished me to! If you wished me to use alum, why did you persist in saying borax?"

"But you are mistaken, my dear, and you were at the time. Don't you remember that you once said you wanted a corkscrew when you meant a screwdriver, and how mad you got about it?"

"Never! Never remember anything of the kind! A man who would say corkscrew for screwdriver would be a fool and no one has ever yet charged me with carrying around a head stuffed with suet! When I want the grindstone, do I ask you for the coal scuttle? When I want the coal scuttle, do I ask you for the fetlock? I'm not so tongue tied that I can't name what I want."

"Well, dear, it isn't worth disputing about," said the diplomatic Mrs. Bowser as she saw a storm gathering.

"But it is," persisted Mr. Bowser as he got out of his chair. "You repeatedly and distinctly advised me to try borax water. Of course you were actuated by the kindest motives, but you distinctly said borax. I'm not calling it up now to carp or criticise, but to show you how easy it is to be mistaken. I used to wash my head in borax water, and so I am sure you said borax."

"Alum water, my dear."

"Mrs. Bowser, do you know who I am?" demanded Mr. Bowser as he stood before her in all his dignity. "Do you realize that you are disputing my word? I say you said borax water. That ought to settle it. It does settle it. I must say that I am shocked and grieved to witness such a spirit of perverseness in you. If you were talking to another woman, there might be some excuse, but when you are addressing your own husband, a man who knows more in a minute than you do in a week, you ought to realize the situation. Do you admit that you said borax water, or do you intend to spoil my evening and drive me off to a saloon by your obstinacy?"

"MRS. BOWSER, DO YOU KNOW WHO I AM?"

The cat had been asleep under the lounge and dreaming of scraps with other felines, but at sound of Mr. Bowser's loud voice she came creeping out and began to blink from one to the other and wonder what the row was about. Mrs. Bowser ought to have yielded the point without further dispute and restored the current of harmony; but, feeling that she was in the right, she quietly replied:

"I said alum water, Mr. Bowser. Don't you remember one day last fall when you wanted a glass cutter and called it a can opener, and we"—

"Never! That is simply a fresh insult. I sat down here in my own home to enjoy the evening with you. My heart was full of love and kindness. You, in your obstinacy and perverseness, have seen fit to quarrel with me and turn my happiness to gall. It is years and years, as you well know, since I have had a glass cutter around the house or wanted to use one. It is a dangerous thing, Mrs. Bowser, to drive a husband to the limit, and I hope you will pause before it is too late."

"I might possibly have said borax," she admitted as the cat rubbed against the leg of a chair and purred.

"You certainly did," replied Mr. Bowser; "you certainly did."

"But it was a slip of the tongue, of course."

"I'll admit that. Yes, it was a"—

"And you often make slips. Only last night when you wanted the turpentine and I spent half an hour looking for it."

"By thunder, woman, but how long do you mean to keep this up?" shouted Mr. Bowser as the red returned to his ears and neck. "I want turpentine and ask for turpentine! Never in all my life! Why, to hear you talk one would think I hadn't brains enough to get out of the way of a street car! You said borax water was good for my chilblains, and because"—

"I'm sure I said alum," she interrupted.

"That will do, woman; that will do! Pass up to your room. At as early an hour as possible in the morning we will call in our respective lawyers and settle this. There is nothing more to be said; nothing more."

Mrs. Bowser went without a word, and when she had disappeared Mr. Bowser put on his overcoat and hat and passed out of the front door, intending to hang around the drugstore for a couple of hours and make her feel as bad as she could. He stepped out just in time to confront a man stealing the doormat. There were a collision, two yells, a clinch and a roll down the steps, but a minute later, as Mrs. Bowser got down, the mat stealer was running away and Mr. Bowser was lying on his back with a skinned nose and two loose teeth.

"Hadn't you better come in, dear?" asked Mrs. Bowser, bending over him.

He slowly reached his feet and followed her up the steps without a word, and when she had removed his overcoat and hat and advised him to go to bed and have his nose washed with borax water he simply uttered a sigh and passively obeyed. M. QUAD.

MR. BOWSER WAS LYING ON HIS BACK.

Limited Generosity.

"Here, my little girl, is a penny for you. I was poor once myself."

"Tanks, boss, I guess dey ain't any danger of yer ever gittin' dat way ag'in."—New York Journal.

Overworked Backs

Being Relieved in Fort Wayne.

You say it's from overwork when you're all tired out from sitting at your desk all day long, from sticking right to it no matter what your daily task may be. You go home with a torturous ache in the small of the back, with sharp pains in the loins. The kidneys rebel at overwork and the many aches and pains tell you they are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Set the kidneys right again; remove the ache by curing the cause; cure every kidney ill from common backache to diabetes. Read this Fort Wayne proof:—

Mr. C. J. Noll, of 115 Barthold street, butcher employed at H. Strodel's meat market, says: "When I was working in Frenchtown an attack of kidney disorder got hold of me and though I tried every known remedy I was unable to get rid of it. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at Meyer & Co.'s drug store. Before I took these pills I was greatly troubled with backache. I could not rest at night in only one position, and when I was up it was almost impossible to stoop. The kidney secretions were discolored, had a bad odor and at times I grew very dizzy. I commenced feeling better as soon as I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills and by the time I had finished the first box I was entirely cured."
